PROFIT-TAKING BY SPECULATORS CAUSES RELAPSE IN SILVER

ADVERSE WEEK-END REACTION FEARED

BURNED AT STAKE

INDIAN GIRLS SAVED BY POLICE AT LAST MINUTE

INCIDENT NEAR PANAMA

"POSSESSED OF DEVIL"

Panama, Yesterday.

The last-minute arrival of the police saved two Indian girls from being burned alive at the stake on the suspicion of being "possessed of a devil" in the Indian territory of Sanblas to-day.

The girls were aged 18 and 13, and were on the point of being set on fire when an aeroplane dramatically swooped down and caused a panic among their persecutors.

The police found that the girls had apparently set up a wooden god in their hut and had spent the night lying in their hammocks, singing. The remainder of the tribe had then held a meeting and had decided that the girls must be burned.

Until recently burning was the tribal punishment for adultery, but in some cases offenders were tortured by ants — they were buried to the neck in sand and ant trails were then made towards them. — Reuter.

FRANCO-SOVIET PACT

To Prevent, Not To Provoke, War

Paris, Yesterday.

An early initialling of the Franco-Soviet Pact is expected to follow as the result of new instructions sent from Moscow to-day to M. Potemkin, the Soviet Ambassador here.

M. Pierre Laval, the French Foreign Minister, in a speech to-day declared that if the Pact were such as the Soviet communique recommended, (namely an unlimited contract of mutual military assistance), it would land France in a war and he would refuse to sign it.

The Pact as he envisaged it in the agreement with Moscow aimed at preventing and not provoking war.—Reuter.

GREEK MONARCHIST'S HOPES PREMATURE

Throne Of Greece To Remain Empty

Athens, Yesterday.

There is no question of presently recalling the ex-king to the throne, but perhaps later a referandum on the question of the restoration of the monarchy may be taken, if any considerable section of the Greek people wishes it, indicated Vice-Premier Kondylis, who said that the monarchy question was for the people to decide and that they should be allowed to express freely their wishes after the National Assembly had met and the nation was calm.—Reuter.

A London message states that the ex-King of Greece arrived in London yesterday evening and in an interview with Reuter said he knew nothing about the Paris report that a meeting of Greeks in Paris had invited him to return to the throne.—Reuter.

The bowls season opened yesterday, and our photographer caught S. Logan, who skipped one of the Police rinks against the Recreio, about to send a wood down on the 12th head.—(King's Studio).

DANGEROUS ANCHORAGE FOR TANKER

Captain Of Juno To Pay Heavy Fine

SHELTERED IN JAPANESE FORTIFIED ZONE

Takao, Yesterday.

The local court has sentenced the captain of the Dutch oil tanker Juno, who has been a prisoner since April 4, to pay a fine of 2,000 Yen or forfeit his ship, for violation of the Shipping Law.—Reuter.

A Reuter's cable of April 10 stated that the Juno, of 2,345 tons, which is under British charter, was brought in to Takao under escort of the Japanese destroyer Shimakaze, on suspicion of espionage.

It appears that the Juno was caught in a typhoon and took refuge in a bay in the Pescadores Islands, which is within the fortified zone, thus arousing the suspicions of the Japanese naval authorities.

JAPAN PREPARED FOR REPRISALS

Organised Control Over Imports Decided On

Tokyo, Yesterday.

The organised control which has hitherto limited outgoing trade will be henceforth extended to incoming trade.

This important decision was reached at a plenary session of the Trade Council to-day.

An agreement was also reached unanimously that the trade safeguarding law shall be invoked against such foreign countries as impose severe restrictions against Japanese merchandise by increasing import tariffs or by restricting or prohibiting imports from those countries.—Reuter.

FEVERISH BUSINESS ACTIVITIES

DOMESTIC AND FOREIGN PRICE PROBLEMS IN U.S.

CONFLICTING RUMOURS

London, Yesterday.

To-day's sharp relapse in silver was due to heavy profit-taking by speculators who were unwilling to maintain open commitments, fearing adverse week-end developments in the United States. Very large business was transacted, brokers working late in the afternoon in order to clear up their books.

Two rumours were circulating in the market. Some believe that the United States will fix the purchasing price of both domestic and foreign silver at $1.29 per ounce; others expect President Roosevelt to fix the domestic level only at $1.29, leaving the world market to take care of itself, in which event a collapse of the present large bull position is considered to be a real menace.

The action of Mexico in withdrawing silver coins from circulation has caused no surprise. It is pointed out that the decision further reduces the potential supplies of the world market. —Reuter.

CANTON TRADE BADLY HIT BY RISE IN SILVER

Import And Export Both Affected

OVERSEAS REMITTANCES LARGELY DIMINISHED

[From Our Own Correspondent]

Canton, Yesterday.

Commodity prices here are dropping owing to the rising value of silver, the present rate being the highest in the past 14 years. Both import and export trade is affected by the artificial raising of the silver price by the American Government.

One strange result of the exchange situation is that the value of the Shanghai dollar to-day is only 90 cents, as against the normal value of $1.25 Canton currency. The premium for the Shanghai silver dollar, however, nets $1.25 local currency.

Foreign residents whose salaries are paid on a gold basis suffer by the appreciation of the white metal, though some are better off owing to the fact they receive their pay partly in Hong Kong currency, which is fixed at a better rate.

Remittances from overseas China have decreased owing to the depreciation of foreign money. Some Chinese abroad are retaining their savings and delaying remittance in the hope of getting a better rate in the future, and their dependents in Canton and the country are suffering in consequence.

London, Last Night.

London Silver prices were to-day down 1-1/8 as follow:—

	Apr. 26	Apr. 27.
Spot	36-1/4	35-1/8
Forward	36-3/8	35-1/4

The London on New York cross-rate at closing to-day was £—U.S. $4.8206, as compared with £—U.S. $4.8112 at closing yesterday.—Our Own Correspondent.

MEXICO WITHDRAWS SILVER COINAGE

Safeguarding Country's Supply Of Metal

Mexico City, Yesterday.

The Government's action to safeguard the silver supply is announced in the form of a decree by which all silver coinage is ordered to be withdrawn from circulation.

All future transactions are to be made against paper money with the addition of copper coinage for odd amounts up to 50 cents.

The decree becomes effective immediately.

The banks are closed in order to prevent undue speculation and to give the country time to adjust itself to the new conditions.—Reuter.

FAMOUS AVIATRIX ATTENDS DEATH INQUIRY

Motor-Cyclist Killed Following Collision With Mrs. Mollison's Car

Shanghai, yesterday.

Mrs. Amy Mollison attended but gave no evidence at the inquest at Bridlington on Harry Ramsay, the motor-cyclist who was killed in a collision with a car in which Mrs. Mollison was driving with her father, near his home, on April 18.

A verdict of "Death by misadventure" was returned, with no blame attributed to anyone. —Reuter.

CRIME IN FILM CITY DEEPENS

Police Believe That Howard Shot Others

Hollywood, Yesterday.

A mysterious Countess, whom the Police describe as "too important and well-known to be named," is being sought for questioning in connection with the shooting of the dress-designer Paul Wharton, Professor Bolte, and Wharton's chauffeur William Howard, following a dinner at Wharton's luxury flat.

The quest follows the finding of a telegram to the Countess in Howard's flat.

The Police opine that Howard shot the others and then committed suicide.

Two men and two women, one of whom was dressed as a man, have already been questioned.—Reuter.

A later message states that the Countess voluntarily went to the police and satisfied them that she had had no connection with the tragedy. — Reuter.

MANCHUKUO RULER RETURNS HOME

Emperor Pu Yi At Dairen

Osaka, Yesterday.—Emperor Pu Yi of Manchukuo, who left here for Dairen on Tuesday last, was scheduled to arrive in Dairen yesterday. He was then to have entrained for Hsinking, the capital of Manchukuo.

CO-EDUCATION TO BE BANNED IN PEIPING

Mayor Believes It Upsets Morals

WOMAN TEACHER'S SCATHING COMMENT

Peiping, Yesterday.

Mr. Yuan Liang, Mayor of Peiping has issued two new orders, but even his most ardent supporters doubt if they can be made effective.

He has ordered the cessation of all co-education in the middle schools of Peiping and has also instructed the social welfare office of the municipality to see that landlords do not let rooms in the same courtyard to men and women.

These instructions, he says, are issued in accordance with the New Life Movement, and adds that it is contrary to the good morals of men and women to live in the same courtyard, even if they occupy different rooms.

A vernacular newspaper quotes a Chinese woman educator on the middle schools order as saying "Mr. Yuan has apparently mistaken co-education for co-habitation." She trusts that the order will be overruled by the Ministry of Education.—Reuter.

GIRL ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Overdose Of Sleeping Draught

A 19-year-old Chinese girl, Poon Kwai-wan, residing at No. 43, Yu Wah Street, Wanchai, attempted to commit suicide by drinking two phials of sleeping draught yesterday afternoon.

It appears that at about 3 p.m. yesterday, after drinking the drug, she immediately went out of the house, and caused much anxiety to her family by not returning home for dinner.

Enquiries were made and she was located four hours later in the Young Wo Nursing Home at Happy Valley.

The girl is at present under medical treatment in the Government Civil Hospital, and is reported to be progressing favourably.

WEATHER REPORT

A moderate anti-cyclone covers the Pacific to the east of Japan and a shallow depression covers south China. The depression to the east of the southern Philippine Islands is nearly stationary. The local forecast for to-day, as issued by the Royal Observatory last night, was south and south-west winds; moderate; cloudy; local showers.

WEDNESDAY WIN

ALBION LOSE AMAZING CUP FINAL BY 4-2

WINNING GOALS IN LAST 5 MINUTES

93,000 SEE ENCOUNTER OF THRILLS

London, Yesterday.

Sheffield Wednesday secured their third win in an English F. A. Cup Final, when they defeated West Bromwich Albion by 4 goals to 2, after 90 minutes' play, before 93,000 spectators at Wembley Stadium in a thrilling clash.

His Majesty the King was not present, and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, representing him, shook hands with the players before the start.

Among the prominent spectators were the South African Test cricketers and Lord Derby.

SENSATIONAL START

There was a sensational start to the classic, Palethorpe, the Wednesday centre-forward, opening the scoring with a low hard shot in the second minute, following a fine movement between Hooper and Surtees, the Wednesday right-wing pair.

The Albion fought back finely although they were troubled by the nippy Wednesday forwards, whose left-winger, Rimmer, gave Shaw and Murphy, the Throstles' right-back and right-half many anxious moments.

ALBION EQUALISE

A perfect midfield movement culminated in the Albion equalising in the 21st minute when their centre-half, W. Richardson, pushed the ball across to Carter, his inside-right, who first drew the Wednesday defence, swerved through, and then passed across the field to Boyes, his left-winger, who sent in a bullet-like shot which entered the net.

The Albion were now on top, but their forwards were prevented from breaking through by the dangerous quick-tackling methods of the Wednesday halves, who plied their wingers, Hooper and Rimmer, with fine sweeping passes.

TENSE MOMENTS

Two exceedingly tense moments occured when, firstly, Boyes, the Albion's left-winger, flashed across a shot that had Brown well beaten, but which went out of play, and when Pearson, the West Bromwich custodian, was penalised for carrying the ball, but Sharp missed with the kick.

Sharp, the Wednesday right-half, again missed with a shot which went wide when the Wednesday were awarded a free kick a few yards outside the penalty area.

COMMUNISTS IN YUNNAN

Reported 80 Miles N.E. Of Capital

Peiping Yesterday.

The Communists in Yunnan appear to have taken a turn towards the north-west, according to the latest despatches from Yunnanfu.

They are now reported to have reached Kutsingfu, 80 miles north-east of Yunnanfu, and it is stated that no Government troops are either north or west of that point, the nearest being those reported recently at Panhsien, 50 miles east of Kutsingfu.—Reuter.

SHORT STORY

PUBLIC ENEMY

By PHYLLIS HASTINGS

"THERE'S times," said Shawn Grant, "when what the law wants and what the people wants is entirely different."

I laughed. "That's a sweeping statement, but true enough, I dare say. Though most of us believe, nowadays, that the people make the law. However, you may be thinking of some particular instance," I added, side-tracking him; for once let an Irishman get to talking politics and he'll never finish, unless he finishes in the thick of a fight. But snare him into the telling of a tale and you'll find yourself praying that there need be no end.

Shawn buried his face in his jug of porter, as if to refresh himself for his coming labour. We were sitting in James Cleary's. There were a score or so of others, farmers and farm labourers mostly, but Shawn and I were sitting a little apart, at a small table.

It was two days since my car had broken down at this god-forsaken spot and interrupted my tour, and I was thankful that the Irish boy had, on sight, constituted himself my valet, guide, and social, mental and spiritual adviser. I was even beginning to entertain the suspicion that he had been round to the garage and persuaded them not to hurry overmuch with the repairs. Not that they required a great deal of persuasion.

Shawn nodded weightily. "Yes," he said, "there was a case I had in mind. It happened a while ago, during the Trouble. Just before I was born." He paused, then asked, almost pleadingly, "Maybe you'll have heard of Michael O'Malley?"

I shook my head.

Shawn sighed. "You haven't so."

I smiled. "It's a long way from here to Warwickshire."

"It is that," agreed Shawn, to whom the name conveyed nothing. He sat lost in thought for a moment or two, then returned to his story.

"Michael O'Malley—God rest his soul!—was a fine gentleman, though there's many that would call him by another name. Public Enemy it is they'd call him now."

"What! Did you have your gangsters before Chicago got the idea?"

"There was no gang connected with Michael O'Malley. He worked alone. Why would he be needing others? Sure it took the police all their time to get even the echo of Nelly's hoofbeats."

"Nelly?"

"Yes, and it was herself that saved O'Malley's life many a time. He wouldn't be having motor-cars and such-like. No, it was a horse for him. Nelly was a dark bay, but what her markings were no one could tell. For sometimes she'd have two white fetlocks and another time a star on her forehead, and once, I've heard tell, she was yet black all over, as if she'd come from the stables of the Old Gentleman himself.

"O'Malley worked the country districts, and it wasn't only for himself that he robbed, though he'd got a nice bit of money hidden away, against the day when he'd retire and live like a nobleman. A great spirit he had, like your own Robin Hood, and he filled the hearts of the poor with new hope and their stomachs with all the food they were needing. Sure it was nothing to him to hold up a lorry packed with good things, and then there'd be great rejoicings in the district, and people who'd thought to go hungry to bed were feasting on oranges, and fish fresh from the coast, and wine from France.

"Indeed, it's a wonder he wasn't captured and all. But O'Malley was clever, and not a one would give him away. Often when Justice was hard on his heels he would jump a gate, unsaddle Nelly—he was quicker than lightning at that—and Justice would arrive to find nothing but a mare grazing peacefully in a field. At first the police used to take her to the farmer owning the land, but always the farmer laughed and said it was his horse. Whose should it be else? So they got sick of doing that, and started to lay cunning traps.

"There was one time when O'Malley was careless. Maybe he was tired, and maybe he was lonely. Indeed, it's a friendless life for a man, with half the country curing him, the other half blessing him, and not a one to go by his side.

"It was a dark night, and raining. O'Malley plodded on, with his head down and Nelly's hoofs suck-sucking in the mud, and presently he heard a motorcar, and drew in to the side of the road to wait for it. O'Malley knew the sound of every kind of engine, and he guessed this to be a large, elegant car, with money in it and gold watches. He stopped it, and asked the two men in it to hand over their valuables. He asked politely and like the gentleman he was, though it was over the barrel of a revolver he was asking.

"They made no fuss or bother, but handed him the stuff willingly, and O'Malley didn't see the wink that one of them gave to the other.

"O'Malley said 'Thank you,' and rode off. In his usual way he would have shot at the petrol tank, but to-night he was careless. Sure and it wasn't likely they'd be wanting to follow in weather like that. And it was sorry for them he was, too. A broken-down car isn't much comfort so late at night and so far from the town.

"But he hadn't gone half a mile when he heard them chasing him. O'Malley swore. There was he, wanting a bed and some sleep, and Nelly the same, and he must turn his mind instead to escaping.

"O'Malley decided he must take to the fields, though the good Lord knew it was asking for trouble, with the black night and the soft ground, and the mare starting to go lame.

"And at that moment, with the car behind him, he saw another car stopped right across the road and waiting for him. It was straight into the trap he had walked.

"He pulled Nelly back on her haunches and turned her to the left, not knowing whether it might be wire or wood or water in front of him.

"But by a miracle he found himself in a narrow lane, too narrow for the cars, with wet, dripping hedges almost meeting overhead.

"At the top of the lane O'Malley paused. There was a farmhouse looming up, and even in the darkness it seemed somehow familiar. Then he remembered. It was Kavanagh's. Friends they had been of himself and his parents, before he began his career, and he wasn't certain as to how they'd be feeling about him. But he had to take the risk, for Nelly was dead-beat.

"He knocked on the door, but nobody came, though there was a light in the window. So he knocked again, louder, but not too loud, because he'd a feeling that the men from the car were creeping up the lane behind him.

"The door opened then, and a girl appeared, scared-like.

"He knew her at once, though he hadn't seen her for five years or more.

"'Let me come in, Fiddy Kavanagh,' he whispered.

"She peered at him, and her hand flew to her mouth. 'Is it yourself, Michael O'Malley?'

"'It is. And I'm like to be arrested this moment unless you help me.'

"She shivered. 'I daren't.'

"He smiled in disbelief. 'You daren't Fiddy Kavanagh?'

"'I'm alone. My father and Patrick are away to the hospital with my mother, who's been taken sick.'

"'All the better,' said O'Malley, and as he spoke he was taking the bridle and saddle from Nelly. 'Put her in the stables with your horses Fiddy.'

"Without a word she led the mare away, and O'Malley went into the house.

"He was standing before the fire when she returned and steam was rising from his wet clothes like mist from a pool.

"He looked at her and smiled, and when O'Malley smiled at a woman she was ready, most times, to run a sword through her bosom for his sake. But Fiddy only frowned at him from under her black brows.

"'You know that it's searching the farm they'll be?'

"She nodded.

"'May be it's yourself that would like to see your old playmate shot down before your eyes?'

"'Is it shooting they are?' she asked, quickly.

"'No. But they will be. I will not go quietly. I will shoot them, and then——'

"'My father will have no talk

WOMEN THROUGH WOMEN'S EYES

DO women talk too much? This is evidently an accepted fact, according to the following extracts from recent novels by women writers.

Sophia Cleugh, in "The Angel Who Couldn't Sing" (Hodder and Stoughton, 7s. 6d.).

"She listens with real attention. That's a rare gift in a woman. Most of you ....chatter like magpies. ... In these days I rarely trouble to finish a sentence."

Mrs. Victor Richard, in "House Party" (Jarrolds, 7s. 6d.).

"Men should be encouraged to talk about themselves. What men liked .... was a listener, and she attributed Amy's failure, in the matter of getting married, entirely to the fact that she would not sit with her mouth shut."

Josephine Johnson, in "Now in November" (Gollanz, 7s. 6d.).

"Women like words too much. .. They like to be told what a man would see for himself A woman'd get fat on words alone."

TO-DAY'S ECONOMY

HERE is an idea if you have a felt or velours hat which you want to alter. The brim may be a bit out of shape although the crown is good enough.

Cut the brim off carefully, being sure that the "line" is right. And cut the felt—as you do fur—with a sharp penknife on the wrong side—not with scissors, or you will get it wavy.

The trimming is just a bank of silk sewn on at the back. Thrust through one of those very large tortoiseshell or mock tortoiseshell outsize hair pins.

If you do not want to use the bank of silk you could have instead a bow of velvet or corded ribbon.

Probably you have all these things in your piece box or drawer and so need not buy any of them.

Such a little hat would stick on well in wet or gusty weather. It is a little more "dressy" than a beret and yet it would save your better hats.

DOUBLE CHIN REMEDY

A remedy for a doubles chin is to avoid tucking in the chin when reading or sewing. Splash the neck with cold water and Eau de Cologne every morning and evening, drying briskly with a rough towel.

Standard Names For 192 Colours

New York.

WITH the new emphasis placed on colour by modern ideas in home furnishing, it seems that a simple and clear description should be in common use for whatever colour appears in a fabric or in different parts of a room. Certainly prevalent practice is not always either simple or clear. Personal and independent ingenuity has added to the confusion by efforts to seem original and to give an impression to the public that goods with peculiar distinction were being described.

Recently there has come to our notice a colour card that seems to offer a sound basis for avoiding the vagueness and misunderstanding that has been mentioned. This "card" is really a folder, made up of eight 5" by 10" pages, shows 192 colours, each with its name. The samples are made of silk ribbon, half satin and half grosgrain. The Textile Colour Card Asso., 200 Madison Ave., N. Y. C., publishers, state that their business is mostly with manufacturers but that single cards are sold to the public at $8 a copy. Use of these by shops, department stores and interior decorators generally, would tend to establish a common language that would be welcome in place of the present individualistic and often confusing practice.

A tailored spring suit that is a classic, in its present-day audacity. A black skirt with a pin stripe, a deep red blouse of crepe de chine, a jacket of black wool, and the outfit reverts back to the short skirted ensemble prevalent some years ago. With a "flower pot model" hat, Carole Lombard, of the movies, is ready for the street.

SUGGESTIONS FOR OUTFITS

IF you are one of those people who have not the patience to make a complete crocheted or knitted outfit, concentrate either on the skirt or the jacket, and make the corresponding garment in silk or linen or jersey cloth on tailored lines.

Here is a suggestion: a maize coloured woollen skirt, either made in one on circular needles, or, if you are expert enough, given a shaped panel down the front, would look charming with a semi-tailored jacket is dark brown linen or suiting shantung and either a little crocheted or knitted jumper combining both colours.

The jumper can, of course, be made in an open stitch, which will lessen the time taken to make it.

TABLE EQUIPMENT

YOUR table equipment will depend upon whether you favour table cloths or sets of mats. Many housewives still prefer a cloth for breakfast and for a formal dinner party. A good plan is to have three best table cloths, three others or three afternoon tea cloths with napkins to match and three kitchen tablecloths. In addition you will need a dozen dinner napkins, three sideboard cloths and half a dozen tray cloths.

For the kitchen, stock a dozen each of glass cloths, tea cloths and dusters, three roller towels, three oven cloths and half a dozen lavatory cloths.

THE BEST REDUCER

IT is ridiculous to wonder why we object to deforming ourselves—almost as ridiculous as the long-necked "giraffe ladies."

The average girl has the sense to realise that we were not made wrongly and that our waists were made as they were intended to be.

One can keep a perfectly shapely figure without any undue torture or deformation. We want to be free and happy. Why should we spend half our days trying to alter our shape?

Plenty of exercise is the best reducer and every sensible person will agree with this.—By Miss Modern.

WASHING THE FACE

FOUR VALUABLE HINTS

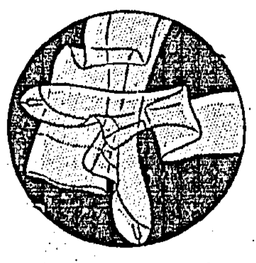
THERE are some women who insist on soap and water for cleansing purposes, however dry their skin may be. For their benefit a few suggestions are volunteered:—

Use only nursery soap or soap of the super-fatted variety.

Water, if hard, should be softened by the addition of a few drops of spirits of camphor or a pinch of toilet oatmeal.

Before washing, the skin should be prepared with a "dressing" of oil or a soothing cream.

Wash your faces once a day in borley water, an oldfashioned but unsurpassed cosmetic for the dry and sensitive skin, and one that is easily prepared.



FOR TELEPHONE BOOKS

NUMBERS of telephone boxes are in dingy places or where there is a bad light.

If your eyes are not too good for reading small print, then you will know the difficulty of trying to pick out a name or telephone number in the book.

Even the telephone books in your own home may be difficult in this respect if your sight is not keen.

Some little magnifiers (red for the red book and blue for the blue half of the telephone directory) can easily be made.

They can be attached with the appropriately coloured silk cord securely to each volume, and are there all ready when you need to look up a special number.

They are useful for any reference book such as a railway guide or other timetable.

FOR YOUR DINNER TABLE

MATS of pastel-tinted organdie bring a very dainty not to the dinner-table, and you can choose them in a colour which is a pale tone of your table-lamp shade, or of your candles and floral decorations.

Some exceedingly pretty one are shaped like pansy or lily petals at the edges, and it is possible to get them in a harmony of two colourings.

Real lace mats always looked lovely on the table, but particularly so when set over old gold or silver fabric. The gleaming metal note should link up, of course, with some other dominant note on the table. Where the new china, with silver instead of gilt printing, is used, it is charming to see the glint of silver under the fine lace of the mats, and you can then choose red or a deep rose pink for your table decorations.

Quite a pretty idea is to embroider a set of dinner mats in petit point on finest green canvas, choosing some quaint old English design—foral or scenic—in which there can be worked the harmony of colours which particularly suit your other table fitments.

FOR THE PIMPLE AND SPOT AFFLICTED

LOTION FOR THE SKIN

FROM Canada, where one of the ingredients is found in soil on the banks of the St. Lawrence river, comes a home treatment evolved by another specialist for her young clients who are afflicted with pimples and spots. This consists of a lotion that is painted on the skin three times a day, and the powdery residue rubbed into the skin. For ten days this is done, or until the skin becomes dry. Then a cream is applied to remove the dried-up skin, and the new surface-skin is left free to breathe.

Rough skin, or "goose flesh," on the elbows, upper arms are shoulders of girls is usually the result of bad circulation, and can be dealt with at home by massage with a rubber roller or friction brush.

CRAIGENGOWER "A" OPEN BOWLS SEASON WITH SMASHING WIN

CLUB'S AMAZING COMEBACK

THREE GOALS IN 4 MINS. AGAINST POLICE

FAVOURITES FOR RUNNERS-UP POSITION IN LEAGUE

In their premier League soccer encounter against the Police yesterday, upon which so much depended, the Club, after having been in arrears almost throughout, staged a brilliant recovery in the last five minutes, scoring three goals in four minutes to win a hard game by 5 goals to 3.

The Police played the better football, and looked certain winners — until the last hectic five minutes when the Club, gaining their second wind, absolutely overwhelmed them. The absence of Brooks during part of this rally had a great deal to do with the ultimate defeat of the Police; up to the time of his leaving the field through an injury, he had proved literally impassable.

The Club defence gave a sound display, Hill being very prominent with some clever clearances, and both backs were very sure in their tackling, and showed quite good understanding with each other's moves. Rodger had little chance against the shots that passed him, and was always an alert and resourceful custodian.

It was in the intermediate line that the real weakness of the Club lay, during the greater part of the game. Poor marking, careless tackling, and some atrocious passing proved a hindrance to the forwards and rearguard alike.

Forrow was right out of touch with things as pivot, and, though full praise must go to him for the fine way in which he stuck to a difficult task, the position was beyond his capabilities. Robertson was the outstanding half-back, working like a trojan throughout in a greatly harassed defence, and still initiating most of the attacks carried out by the forwards. His prompt and hard tackling gave Chris Pile and Moss little scope, and quite often he proved more of a menace to the Police charge than did Fowler and Elliott, especially during the first half, when the latter seldom did the right thing!

ARTILLERY COLLAPSE PITIFULLY

EAST LANCS WIN IN SECOND-HALF

SANDFORD'S GREAT DISPLAY FOR WINNERS

Playing a splendid, hard game during the first half, when they practically held their own, the Artillery fell to pieces during the second period and the East Lancashires had little difficulty in netting on four occasions to win their First Division soccer encounter at Chatham Road by the comfortable margin of 5 goals to 1.

The East Lancs had hard luck in not scoring soon after the opening whistle, when Sandford grazed the bar with a terrific shot from 12 yards.

The first goal was scored after 15 minutes, Sandford drawing Mackrill out of his charge before passing to Horner, who scored into an empty goal.

LOSERS' SECOND DEFEAT

The Lincolns suffered their second defeat of the season yesterday at Chatham Road, when they lost their Second Division soccer encounter against the Fusiliers by 4 goals to 2, though being unlucky to do so.

The Lincolns were the better team and should have won, and it was doubly unfortunate that two of the goals scored against them were scored by their own centre-half, Wildy.

CHAMPIONS GIVEN SCARE BY KOWLOON

LED BY TWO CLEAR GOALS AT INTERVAL

CHAN TAK-FAI SCORES A "HAT-TRICK"

South China "A" defeated Kowloon in an interesting First Division encounter at Caroline Hill yesterday, winning by 4 goals to 2.

At the interval, Kowloon, lying at the bottom of the League, had scored two goals against the champions without reply!

A Penalty Goal

Kowloon's first goal was from a penalty kick for alleged handling of the ball in the danger zone. Barlow took the shot and made no mistake.

Following this first goal, Kowloon gave a great display and somewhat surprised the Chinese team.

Kowloon scored their second goal through a brilliant shot from Knox, who attempted a first-time effort from some distance out on the left wing.

Kowloon Press

Greatly encouraged by their lead, Kowloon went all out to gain further points and had the South China defence busy with some fast wing movements, clever tactics, and good passing, but they could not add a further goal before the interval.

After this, the scene changed completely and it was evident after several minutes that South China "A" were not to be beaten so easily.

Ip Pak Wa Scores

Within five minutes, Ip Pak-wa had Cairns out of his goal attempting to clear a dangerous ball, and, although he managed to touch it, he could not make an effective clearance and Ip Pak-wa netted.

Following this, South China "A" went all out and Kowloon soon found their goal severely bombarded. This upset their defence and they were soon kicking wildly in an endeavour to keep the Chinese eleven at bay.

Second Chinese Goal

Ten minutes later came South China's second goal, when a neat pass from Lee Kwok-wai, on the left-wing, gave Chan Tak-fai his chance and he netted.

YACHTING SEASON IS CONCLUDED

Ideal Weather For Occasion

MAIRI NOT TO RACE HERE AGAIN

Ideal weather conditions favoured the conclusion of the yachting season yesterday at the Royal Hong Kong Yacht Club when a special Ladies' and Visitors' race and a Whalers' Race were featured. The course set for the cruisers had to be shortened in order to let the whalers come up.

The Rowing race was the most interesting event of the afternoon being closely contested throughout. The gentle breeze was a bit too spasmodic to permit the yachts to get really under way.

One of the most successful four-tonners of the season, Mairi, which Lieut.-Commander D. Orr Ewing has been racing for some time, will not be seen in local waters again as she left by the s.s. Sirdhana for England yesterday. Lord Douglas Hamilton is her owner, and he will be racing her himself next season.

Yesterday's Results

The results of yesterday's racing were as follows:—

"A" Class:—

1, Wasp II (Mrs. Griffin); 2, Joss (Miss Larssen).

"I," "Y" & "G" Classes:—

1, Sirius (Mrs. Cooper); 2, Widgeon (Miss Bilderbeck).

"H" Class:—

1, Diana (Mrs. Hendricks); 2, Rola (Mrs. Wolseley).

Cruisers:—

1, Norseman (Mrs. Finlay); 2, Typhoon (Mrs. Keary).

Whalers:—

1, Cornwall's Boat "A"; 2, Cornwall's Boat "B."

Commodore's Speech

During the course of his speech, Mr. A. L. Shields, the Commodore of the Club, said: "Yet another racing season has drawn to a close, and, in spite of having started earlier and tackled a very full programme I do not imagine that many of us feel that we are stale and want a rest.

"In addition to the usual Club races on Saturdays, matches on Sundays and ladies' races on Mondays, we have had a very successful series of Wednesday races for both sexes, as quite a number of members and subscribers have been able to get away to sail in mid-week.

"Prizes for the Wednesday series were kindly presented by Mrs. Rouse, Major Griffin and Colonel Bilderbeck, to whom we offer our thanks for their generosity.

Great Loss To Club

"I would refer here to the great loss sustained by the club in the departure for Home of Commodore and Mrs. Elliott. He, I believe, only missed two races in the whole of his time

CIVIL SERVANTS TROUNCED

BOWLING GREEN BEAT KOWLOON C.C.

TWO "SEVENS" RECORDED ON OPENING DAY

CRAIGENGOWER "A," premier league Bowls champions, opened the season yesterday in grand style, trouncing the Civil Service by 40 shots after compiling the highest aggregate of the day. The Kowloon Bowling Green Club, who are likely to be the most serious challengers for the 1935 title, also won convincingly. Craigengower "B," however, lost badly at Kowloon Docks.

Taikoo commenced their first season in the junior league for many years with a win at the Yacht Club, while Craigengower and the Bowling Green won by large margins.

Two "sevens" were recorded. At the K.C.C. the Bowling Green rink, skipped by H. H. Rose (C. J. Chambers, W. Hale, and C. Hosking), recorded the feat on the 14th head to secure a lead of 16 — they eventually beat J. M. Jack's four by 18 shots. On the Police green W. Glendenning's rink (W. Johnson, J. Channing, and J. S. Riddell) secured a "seven" on the 15th head to reduce the arrears to 15-13 against A. H. Basto's Recreio four—the Police four, however, were beaten by three shots. A "six" was recorded by A. O. Brawn's Civil Service rink against Y. Abbas's winning Craigengower rink.

HONG KONG FOOTBALL CLUB ANNUAL DINNER

DISTINGUISHED GATHERING MAKES FUNCTION A SUCCESS

Over 80 members and guests gathered at the Hong Kong Hotel last night, when Sir Henry Pollock, K.C., presided over the annual Hong Kong Football Club dinner and dance, which was graced by a distinguished gathering including Mr. M. K. Lo, senior Vice-President of the Hong Kong Football Association, Comdr. T. A. Hussey, the Services' Vice-President, Mr. T. A. Mitchell, another Vice-President, Comdr. D. Orr-Ewing, the Navy Rugby representative, Captain E. Hague, the Army Football representative, and Lt. Rice-Evans, representing Army Rugby.

Among the others seated at the main table were Mr. H. K. Lee, Mr. H. R. Forsyth, Mr. J. Ralston, Mr. Wong Ka-tsun, Major C. M. McIntyre, R.A., Mr. S. H. Strange, Mr. R. M. Keown, Mr. M. L. Railton, Mr. W. Prydo, Major C. M. Manners, Mr. A. Howe, Captain of soccer, Mr. L. G. Robertson (vice-captain of Rugger), Dr. J. H. McElney and Mr. S. H. Garrod.

Sir Henry Pollock gave the toast, "The King" following which he said:—

"Before I proceed with the pleasant duty delegated to me of proposing the toast of our guests, I wish to make a few observations on the activities and welfare of the Club. This is one of the few occasions when members and their friends foregather in such numbers for social intercourse and it is, I think, a suitable opportunity to survey briefly the past season and give expression to our hopes for the future.

LIFE INSURANCE— an Impregnable Wall

THE world has witnessed some sad economic experiences in recent years. Financial safeguards which were thought strong and trustworthy have proven weak and flimsy.

You owe it to your dependents to build a substantial reserve against adversity; to protect them against future financial hazard. Millions of people live serenely behind the security that life insurance offers, that impregnable wall of defence against economic disaster.

You can create, at age 30, a ten thousand dollar estate, under our Guaranteed Maximum Protection Policy, for $220.00 yearly. In lieu of a lump sum payment, the proceeds will be paid in regular monthly instalments, if desired.

AGE'S BIG PART IN POLITICS

Ability Is The True Criterion

Cabinet Ministers Must Serve Apprenticeship

A FEW considerations on Age in politics may be offered by way of pendant to some recent observations on Youth in the same sphere.

There will be found the same difficulty about laying down hard and fast rules. Exceptions are so numerous and often so striking that they spoil the symmetry of the rule.

We have just seen an Elder Statesman who should have learnt caution with the years plunge into ill-prepared revolution with all the reckless impetuosity of a boy.

The complaint is that there are too many "old men" in politics, that they paralyse enterprise and hold on too long.

Aristotle—if it is permitted to quote him as an authority in these days—considered that a man reached the prime of his intelligence at about 50. By then he has acquired whatever stock of "phronesis"—i.e., the quality which enables him to form right and just judgment—he is likely to attain.

Wisdom With Age

If a man is in his prime at 50, he should still at 60 be fit for office and the conduct of public affairs, and the generally accepted idea of antiquity was that Age—and even Old Age—was no disqualification for office unless, of course, accompanied by marked physical deterioration.

The age limits of the ancient world operated in a different way from ours. They prescribed that specific offices should not be held till the attainment of a certain age. Our age-limits, on the contrary, are mostly compulsory retiring limits.

Under the Roman Empire there seems to have been a law requiring the retirement of Senators at 60, but apparently it was not in operation long. If Elder Statesmen are not to sit in Senates, where are they to sit?

The prevailing doctrine was that Youth is reckless and ill-balanced, that middle age is meant for action, and that political wisdom increases with experience and age.

Cicero speaks of the "ferocitas" of youth, the "gravitas" of the long middle period, and the "maturitas" of age. He would have agreed with Lear—Ripeness is all. The crown of Age was expressed in one word—"Auctoritas."

That view has sensibly weakened in modern times. The Nestorian tradition has everywhere lost ground. The Alderman who has "passed the chair" is regarded as "a back number" to be written off. He has presided for his full year at the feast and should be ready—conviva satur—to give way to another.

Young Men And Old

The high average—as it is described—of the age of post-war Cabinets is often the subject of contemptuous remark as though it inflicted an injustice on younger men in their fifties and prevented post-war ideas from having a fair chance to shape or even to influence Cabinet policy.

Prof. J. B. Haldane urged some time ago that at least a third of the Cabinet should be under 40 years of age, instead of the average being 57 as it then was. "You cannot expect old men," he said, "to deal with the present world situation." As a biologist he naturally put his case on biological grounds.

Curiously enough. Alcibiades—who almost certainly knew nothing of biology—put forward a very similar plea that young men and old should share together the task of directing public affairs. His own career, however, was but a poor recommendation of his argument. Yet no one seriously contests the desirability of having a youngish element in the Cabinet, if only because before men are good in Cabinet they require to serve their apprenticeship.

As a matter of fact, the average age of the post-war Cabinets has certainly been no higher than that of pre-war Cabinets. If the 1903 Cabinet contained a larger proportion of young men than most, it was because the Liberal party had been out of office so long that "the old gang" had largely disappeared or had become Old Parrs.

"Pam" At Eighty

Except a man has definitely poor health he is just as likely to be capax imperii in his sixties as in his fifties. He may even run on well into the seventies without his natural force being abated. The danger then is lest he fall a belated victim to the ferocitas of youth and become "an old man in a hurry," like Mr. Gladstone.

The roll of British statesmen shows many remarkable septuagenarians. Palmerston retained his vigour, audacity, and popularity to the day of his death, which found him, still Prime Minister, at 80.

Yet more than ten years before Disraeli had written of him, "He is really an impostor, utterly exhausted and at the best only ginger-beer and not champagne, and now an old painted pantaloon, very deaf, very blind." Was ever the splenetic judgment of an adversary more decisively belied?

If Disraeli himself had enjoyed either Palmerston's or Gladstone's robust constitution, or if he had climbed a bit earlier to the top of his "greasy pole," there would have been more solid achievement in his record.

"Power has come to me too late," he groaned in 1878. "There were days when I felt on waking that I could move dynasties and governments, but that has passed away." He lived to be more of the "old painted pantaloon" even than "Pam," but no one called him "ginger-beer."

Gladstone's Exit

Nothing is more pathetic than the story of Gladstone's reluctant retirement at 85. He posed to himself even in his Private Diary as one longing to shake off the toils of public care and be free.

"My age did something but not enough. The deterioration of my hearing helped, but insufficiently. It is the state of my sight which has supplied me with effectual aid in exchanging my imperative public obligations for what seems to be a free place on 'the breezy common of humanity.'"

Yet when, a little later, a friend alluded sympathetically to his retirement, he turned on him swiftly and said, "Not retirement; I have been put out." So stubbornly did the old man stand on the order of his going.

No one is so old, says Cicero, that he does not think he can live another year. Few men in high office are so old as to doubt their ability to carry on another twelvemonth. Earl Russell was an exception he had "decided never to take office again on a deliberate view of my past labours, my present age and the future anxieties of the State."

His is the example to be commended. Russell quitted the banquet before his friends wished him gone. So did Lord Salisbury, to the great misfortune, as it proved, of the Conservative party, for he was an incomparably better leader than his successor. But he yielded to age and the philosopher's desire for a time of quiet self-collection before the close.

Lord Ripon, on the other hand, took it very badly when he was dropped in 1906, though he had held office in every Liberal Government since 1859. Earl Granville was wounded to the quick when his devoted friend and chief gave the Foreign Office—where he had been a notorious failure—to Lord Rosebery in 1886, and de-graded him to the Colonial Office.

There is no denying it, unfortunately. If impetuosity is the vice of youth, impetuosity—if I may coin a word—is the sin of age.

Yet it stirs the blood to read of some of the "grand old men" of history. What a scene in the Athenian Assembly when Phocion, in a last effort to stop a foolish

Should Women dread the approach of a perfectly natural event?

NATURE never intended you to suffer unduly. Why is it then that so many thousands of women experience such pain and weakness.

Simply because there is a shortage of vital minerals in the body.

That is the reply, supported by the best medical opinion. Calcium is the vital food of every body cell, and any shortage hinders the correct performance of all bodily functions, particularly those of women.

The use of Kalzana, the mineral food, for a few weeks provides the whole system with the indispensable minerals needed to establish that care-free, vigorous health that Nature intended you to enjoy.

But it must be Kalzana, as only in this scientific form (a combination of sodium-lactate and calcium-lactate) will the mineral salts be taken up and retained by your body.

Lose your dread—re-establish the functions on a normal basis by starting a course of Kalzana to-day.

Captain J. D. Newman, R.E., residing at No. 288 Prince Edward Road, Kowloon, reports that between April 19 and April 23 two survey poles and one mosquito net, to the total value of $17, were stolen from the Rifle Range at Kowloon Tong.

What is the USE of ADVERTISING

IF the claims made are proved a fallacy? Would you buy that article a second time? While advertising is a powerful force in educating as to the uses, merits or money saving advantages of a product, the people are the judges when they make their first purchase. "Delivering the goods" is what they demand, and the scrap heap of failures is piled with goods that could not stand the test of public judgment. 'ASPRO' messages are carefully planned to prove what 'ASPRO' can do to alleviate pain and suffering, and the reason of its success throughout the civilised world is simple, because it fulfils all claims made for it. Its purity is its safety, and its quick action the healing service humanity appreciates. 'ASPRO' conforms to the standard of purity laid down by the British Pharmacopoeia (the guiding authority of the Medical Profession), and the 15 uses enumerated below make it an invaluable quick first-aid emergency in every home.

'ASPRO'
GIVES QUICK AND SAFE RESULTS

Great Relief After 14 Years' Suffering

2 Thomas St., Lewisham, N.S.W.
28/2/33.

Dear Sirs,
I have been suffering from Rheumatism and Rheumatoid Arthritis for 12 to 14 years. I have taken a course of your 'ASPRO' Tablets—three after each meal—and often, when in pain, have taken an extra dose before going to bed.
I obtained very great relief from this treatment; in fact, I do not know how I could have continued to move about without 'ASPRO.' The pain has gradually improved, and now I find I need to take 'ASPRO' only occasionally. I can confidentially recommend 'ASPRO' to all sufferers from rheumatism.
(Sgd.) A. H. BURNS.

10F/34.

15 PROVED USES

1—It relieves Headaches in 5 to 10 minutes.
2—It brings Sweet Sleep to the Sleepless.
3—It relieves Rheumatism in one night.
4—It will ease the Nagging pains of Neuritis and Neuralgia.
5—Take 'ASPRO' to relieve Toothache.
6—'ASPRO' taken according to directions will smash up a Cold or 'Flu attack in 24 hours.
7—It brings relief without harming the heart.
8—It soothes away Irritability.
9—It speedily reduces Temperature.
10—The stabbing pains of Sciatica and Lumbago can be hunted out with 'ASPRO.'
11—It can be taken at any time, in Tram, Train, at Home, at Business — anywhere — everywhere.
12—It gives great relief to women when depressed.

THE WHISKY OF DISTINCTION

The Hong Kong Sunday Herald

HONG KONG, SUNDAY, APRIL 28, 1935.

Deceitfulness Of Riches

THOUGH every cloud may have a silver lining, a silver cloudburst is rather overwhelming. Sunday is supposed to be a day in which thoughts of money have no place; but there is always the question of whether one is to put a ten cent piece or a dollar into the box, and when one is quite uncertain how much money one has the question becomes urgent. At any rate the scriptural lesson of how deceitful riches take wings and fly away is quite appropriate; and the victims who have to cash drafts from England are much consoled by the reflection that a neighbour who has to send one there to pay a debt looks offensively cheerful.

There are still some trains of thought about the present silver boom that are not entirely connected with shekels as shekels. One obvious reflection is the marvellous linking together of parts of the world to our grandfathers were disconnected by months of dreary sailing. Last week in New York two parties of friends in different offices carried on a conversation with each other which instead of going direct from the one building to the other had travelled round the world and been relaid in the capital cities of several different countries. It will also be remembered how the gold exchange in Hong Kong was puzzled by a client who obtained news from Shanghai by wireless quicker than the post-office could send a messenger boy along with telegrams. So far as business is concerned, all this attempted particularism or isolationism of country from country is merely an attempt to resist inevitable results of invention and in the race between the two it is the inventors that are bound to win. It is quite safe to say that no market movements have ever been so universally notified and acted upon as the recent rises in the price of silver.

We are faced with a very big problem that is practically new, the control of power and possibilities that are international in their scope, and are not amenable to any municipal law or even to any one code of ethics. These new things will have to be brought under restraint so that they may work for the good of humanity instead of for its destruction. A month ago Mr. Stanley Baldwin, who often seems to think aloud and express what is in every man's mind, said that he wished that aeroplanes had never been invented. When the Wright brothers made their first successful flight only a few years ago, what was called by anticipation "the conquest of the air" was hailed with ecstasy as a new proof of man's victory over nature. To-day pacts for mutual protection prove that there has not yet been a corresponding victory over human nature.

Speculation that can be kept in touch with all centres by wireless information can now within an hour of one man's decision send men in London scurrying off to the exchange, produce wild excitement in New York; destroy the trade basis of vast multitudes in China; cause the Bombay markets to close down; and merely as an incident to some distant bargains put dozens of people in Hong Kong into dire difficulties.

There is no sign either of this wonderful new power of simultaneous action being used for anything good as freely as for wrecking purposes. Do not let us be deceived by the fact that it is not easy to understand figures and rates and price-movements. What we see now going on before our eyes is war, and not ordinary finance or peaceful commerce; in fact, by origin it is actually the same war that seemed to have been ended seventeen years ago; for it really means that the American Senate is still trying to collect war debts. The new conditions created by that vast destruction, and the impossibility of carrying out payments that would have been feasible had not international trade been so diminished, have never been understood and remedied. There are many men who have put strenuous work into the campaign to punish those whom they consider to have intentionally defaulted by making their trade as difficult as possible, and compelling them to adopt the dollar or at least something in a fixed ratio with it the means of doing business. Washington already has in its cellars all the gold mined during the twentieth century, and even the Supreme Court helps to prevent its use, even to satisfy bargains recorded in legal documents.

Surely it is time for those who are under attack to take measures to prevent the completion of a design which ignores their own interests entirely. There is no reason why the stock of silver should join the gold, or why that should be allowed to interfere with the buying and selling of what men have made and what they need. Goodwill and brains are badly needed now that the battle has been joined.

AN INTERESTING PILGRIMAGE

READERS of Dr. Reichelt's very informing book "Truth and Tradition in Chinese Buddhism" must be impressed with the feeling that it is written with the authority of personal contact, and not as the scribes, though the immense range of reading summarised is only less obvious. Dr. Reichelt is, in fact, doing an invaluable work in bringing together at Tao Fong Shan those who realise that intercourse between Christians and Buddhists must be based on mutual understanding of their deepest thought if it is to be culturally or even socially fruitful. And the personal contact can only be maintained by periodical pilgrimages to the centres of Buddhist learning such as he is starting upon in a few days.

It is here that the country rises into the first Mongolian Plateau, and although the names of the towns here are unfamiliar, most of them not even on the map, they are better known in the military headquarters at Moscow and Tokyo, for it is here in the Suiyang Province that suspicions of possible encroachments are rife. Amongst the unintended effects caused by military ambitions is the teaching of geography by the sudden appearance of places hitherto unremarked in the publicity of headlines. TRANS-PACIFIC AIR TRANSPORT LINE

HONG KONG MUST BE ON THE ROUTE

DESTINED BY POSITION TO BE WORLD-JUNCTION

(By A. Eddy)

THE recent trip of the Oriental Clipper from California to Hawaii marks the beginning of the most important transportation development of this century in the Pacific and only immediate action on the part of Hong Kong will secure for this Colony the services of this new airline, which is destined to become one of the most formidable trade and travel routes of the world.

San Francisco cables indicate that the danger of our being left out as a port of call on this airway is a real one, and if no arrangements are made in time to assure the landing at Hong Kong of the aeroplanes of the trans-Pacific airways, an invaluable through traffic will operate past this port without benefiting us in any way and a unique opportunity will be lost to establish a lead in that aerial development for which Hong Kong is naturally predestined by virtue of her geographic position and commercial importance.

American Passengers

Anybody who is inclined to belittle the importance of the airways from a travel point of view will be interested to know that Pan American Airways, who are the promoters of the Pacific American Airways, carried in 1934 the impressive number of 108,000 pay passengers between the United States and Latin America, or more than the total number of foreign visitors to Japan during the last four years. If we consider that three times more American tourists left in 1934 for the Orient than for South America, then the possibilities of air travel in East Asia become evident.

An analysis of the traffic figures of the principal airlines reveals the fact that a very large percentage of air passengers belongs to the different strata of high class business men and executives who have been hitherto unable to travel on account of the insufficient time at their disposal to embark on long ocean or train journeys. It cannot be doubted therefore that members of this new travel class will avail themselves of an opportunity to visit the romantic East, so that the extra influx of visitors which is bound to follow after the inauguration of a regular air service from the United States to the Orient will constitute an economic factor of momentous consequences for the focal points situated along the route.

World Travel Junction

It is unnecessary to stress the importance of Hong Kong, occupying a key position to the trade markets and travel routes of the Far East, and the special advantage that would accrue to this Colony as the first airport of call on the mainland of East Asia. It is equally easy to imagine the loss of time and the many other inconveniences that passengers wishing to make connections at Hong Kong would be put to if they were taken past a world travel junction and one of the most beautiful all-round-the-year resorts in the world, capable of satisfying the most exacting traveller in the way of accommodation and amenities. However, the laws of commercial and travel economics cannot be defied long, and sooner or later Hong Kong is

Hong Kong Personalities

Mr. E. M. RAYMOND

This is the thirty-ninth of the exclusive series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Konya, the talented Hungarian artist.

OUR Personality this week is Mr. Edward Maurice Raymond, a well-known resident of the Colony for the last 33 years.

Born in 1886 and coming to Hong Kong in April, 1902, Mr. Raymond recalls the vast difference in the size and layout of the town in those early days. No trams, buses or motor-cars then thronged the streets and made necessary the use of traffic-lights, while the piling for the foundations of Alexandra Buildings, opposite the windows of his present office in Exchange Building, were just being put in. If a fire occurred, coolies ran the fire-hose to the scene in wheelbarrows, while hand-pumps coped with the outbreak.

On his arrival in Hong Kong Mr. Raymond joined the stock-broking firm of Messrs. Benjamin, Kelly and Potts. Five years later he formed the firm of Raymond and Logan, but in 1910 became a partner in the firm of Benjamin and Potts, transferring, as a partner, to the firm of Moxon and Taylor in 1914 or 1915, remaining engaged in stock-broking till 1926. About this time he was made a J. P. for the Colony.

After the great General Strike of 1925 and the debacle that followed it, Mr. Raymond was nominated a member of the Share Commission of 1926, which was appointed to settle questions of future share dealings and methods and exchange matters. The Commission, which was under the chairmanship of the

CHANNEL BUOYS

WHAT would modern navigation do without the channel buoys — those floating markers that keep ships off the shoals? In a very real sense, the advertisements in this paper are channel buoys, placed for your protection —for the safeguarding of the family expenditures.

These advertisements are the signed statements of reputable firms who seek your patronage on the single basis of giving value for every dollar spent. They are honest statements, the only kind an advertiser can use and remain an advertiser.

People who get the most for their dollar in the market-places are those who keep an eye on the channel buoys. Day by day, they follow the advertisements to learn what and where to buy to the best advantage. Make this a habit. Study the advertisements, in the interest of shrewder buying.

The advertisers in this paper have charted the channels of buying for you. Keep to the course.

The Chinese Jay

OUR plan for Easter Saturday was to go by car to the Sha-tau-kok district and to explore the foothills in search of the Chinese Jay. The day started auspiciously, for we had barely left behind the Kowloon reservoir and commenced the descent to Sha Tin when we saw a jay in a pine tree. The car was stopped and all four of us examined the bird through binoculars. From where we were the bird seemed to be identical with the common English Jay,—actually it is a subspecies of the European species. The vinous red of the body and head and the conspicious white rump patch make identification easy. When the bird is at rest the wing patch of blue white and black bars is easily seen. In the Sha-tau-kok foothills, later in the day, one of us heard and saw another jay.

The Hair-Crested Drongo

The first halt was made at the first wooded village on the South side of the Sha-tau-kok road. A jet black male Koel was seen,—their whistling was heard from every wood. Two or three of the Chinese Hair-Crested Drongo, Chibia hottentotta brevirostris, were seen in this wood. This bird is a summer visitor and this was the first occasion this year that we had seen this species. The entire plumage of this bird is velvety blueblack, the tail is forked and the outer feathers are broadly recurved. On the forehead is a thin bunch of very long hairs,—from which the bird gets its name; these blow about in the breeze and when the bird is perched can be clearly seen. When in flight this species is almost indistinguishable from the Chinese Black Drongo, which is, however, a smaller bird with a longer and more deeply forked though less recurved tail. The Hair-Crested Drongo (length 13 inches) is a bird of the village woods, the Chinese Black Drongo (length 11 inches) is more commonly found in the open fields. Drongos live on insects which they take in flight or from the ground.

Two heronries, a few miles apart, occur on either side of the Sha-tau-kok road. Nest building began in the Hang Ha Po wood in the second week of April and was also in full swing in these two heronries. In the first, Little Egrets predominated, in the second close to Starling Inlet, Chinese Pond Herons were by far the most numerous there being also a few Cattle Egrets. In the Hang Ha Po heronry in the Lam Tsun Valley the Pond Herons nest at the near end of the wood whilst the other end is almost entirely monopolised by Cattle and Little Egrets and this has in our experience, always been the arrangement.

Many of the winter visitors have departed for the North. We saw not a single thrush, blackbird, wagtail, tree-pipit, stonechat, redstart or flycatcher. A few Richard's Pipits were seen and some Little Buntings, also the Crested Bunting which nests in the Colony. Summer visitors included, besides those mentioned above, Barbets and Swallows.

A bird of prey was seen, which was put down doubtfully as a Sparrow Hawk. A pair of White-breasted Kingfishers, a Little Kingfisher and three Chinese Pied Kingfishers made a good list—curiously no Black-capped Kingfishers were seen; evidently the summer migration into the Colony of this species had not yet commenced.

Gentians

Some thousands of Gentians were in blossom. In some places banks were spangled with blue flowers as close as stars on a clear night. The species is Gentiana Loueiri.

An Easter Gift

Besides receiving two chocolate eggs on Easter day a friend presented me with the unexpected gift of a jellyfish weighing between 60 and 100 lbs. This creature was milk coloured with small orange spots; the diameter of the bell was 28 or 30 inches. Some jelly-fish sting very severely and bathers are advised not to come to blows with them.

The Atlas moth, referred to last week, laid 102 eggs for my benefit. She was then released and probably laid a number more afterwards. None have hatched at the time of writing.

TAIKOO DOCK BUSY ONCE MORE

Signs Of Returning Prosperity

ELEVEN SHIPS UNDERGOING REPAIR OR OVERHAUL

Not since the depression first struck Hong Kong in the latter part of 1931, as a result of which shipbuilding and ship repairing suddenly came to an almost complete standstill, has there been so much work on hand in the Taikoo Dock.

At present there are no less than 11 ships being either overhauled or extensively repair, work involving many thousands of dollars. What this means can only be fully appreciated when one realises that last week the dock had only one ship in hand, and that merely for minor repairs. It would seem that the local shipping industry is at last beginning to turn the corner.

Besides the new vessel launched recently for the China Navigation Co., the Wulin, which is now almost ready for service, the following ships are at Taikoo: Nanchang Kanchow, Luchow, Tantalus, Adrastus, Asama Maru, Solviken, H.M.S. Otus, King Lee, and Apoey.

MR. H. J. HOWARD PASSES

Death In Hospital In Canton

BURIAL AT HAPPY VALLEY ON TUESDAY NEXT

The death occurred in Canton on Friday last of Mr. Henry John Howard, at the early age of 35.

Mr. Howard, whose general disposition and kindly nature had won him a lost of friends, had been in the employ of the Standard Oil Company of New York for the past 15 years. He leaves behind him a widow and three children, two girls and a boy, the last named being only two years of age.

The deceased also leaves a brother and sister, both living in the Colony; Mr. William Howard of the C.P.R. agency, and Mrs. Lay, wife of Mr. Thomas Lay, Superintendent of the Kowloon Post Office.

The late Mr. Howard was a keen tennis-player and was a member of both the Kowloon C.C. and the Craigengower C.C.

The funeral arrangement for today have been cancelled, the ceremony being postponed tile Tuesday. The cortege is timed to pass the Monument at 5 p.m.

The s.s. Nellore will leave here for Manila at 11 a.m. next Friday.

The s.s. Nellore is due here from Moji next Tuesday morning.

The R. M. S. Empress of Canada is due in Vancouver on May 8. She will leave for Hong Kong on May 18, arriving here on June 7.

Rumours Current In H.K. Yesterday

COLONIAL TREASURER IS NON-COMMITTED

Rumours being current in Hong Kong yesterday that the salaries of Government servants were to be paid henceforth at a fixed rate of 2/— to the dollar, a representative of the Sunday Herald sought an interview with the Colonial Treasurer, the Hon. Mr. Edwin Taylor.

Asked if the rumour were true, Mr. Taylor would neither confirm nor deny it. "Government officials," he said, "are paid on the monthly daily average of the opening selling rate of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bankin Corporation on demand in London, between one and two shillings."

Having a similar question put to him, the Assistant Colonial Secretary, the Hon. Mr. D. W. Tratman, replied to the effect that the present ruling of the Secretary of State for the Colonies was that Government officials would be paid at a rate between a minimum of one shilling and a maximum of two shillings on the opening selling rate of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation.

CHURCH FESTIVAL IN KOWLOON

St. Andrew's Sunday School Treat

Over 110 children and 40 adults attended the sixteenth annual Festival of the St. Andrew's Sunday School in the Church grounds yesterday.

A very enjoyable afternoon was spent by all the children, games being played and races run throughout the afternoon. After tea the Girls' Association presented two plays, entitled "The Toy Shop", and "Cabbages and Kings," which delighted both the children and parents.

At the conclusion Mrs. J. R. Higgs and Mrs. H. D. Matthews presented the prizes to the successful competitors and also to the winners of the Sunday School prizes.

St. Paul's Easter Message

Cleansing Our Lives Of Sourness

Christ's Victory Over Death

(By Rev. J. N. LEWIS BRYAN)

ONE of the most delightful canticles, or songs, to be found in our Prayer Books is that which we find printed before the Collect for Easter Day. As we are still in the shadow of that day (as it were), I should like to bring it to your notice.

It is made up of three passages from St. Paul's epistles, and the first one tells us how we ought to keep Easter, pointing out that the best way of showing gratitude for a great deliverance is to show ourselves more worthy of the blessing.

He takes an illustration from a curious Jewish custom. If you visited a modern Jewish family you would find the whole house in a bustle a week before the Passover—that Festival in which they remember their deliverance from the slavery in Egypt. And their rule is—no scrap of leaven must be in the house at Passover. Leaven is dough which has gone sour, and everything sour must be cast out before the Feast begins.

House Spring-Cleaned

The house, therefore, is given a thorough spring-cleaning. Every carpet is taken up, every cupboard moved, lest anywhere a crumb of stale bread should be hidden. On the night before the Feast the master of the house lights a candle, and hunts through the house from top to bottom. Any crumbs that are found are burnt. Then he prays, "Let any leaven that I have not seen be as the dust of the ground." He has, at least, done his best to ensure that nothing sour is left inside his dwelling.

St. Paul reminds us that we, too, ought to be just as careful in getting rid of everything that is sour in our lives that would spoil our rejoicing—to put away the leaven of malice and wickedness—everything that is spiteful, sour, bitter and unkind. Most of us can find at least something of one or more of these things in our lives, without looking for them with all the care the Jews put into their search.

They are the things which poison our lives and, if we are wise, we will have a spring-cleaning more than once a year.

The next paragraph gives us a reason why Easter is worth keeping. "Christ, being raised from the dead, dieth no more. Death hath no more dominion over Him."

Death Cannot Hold

There is a Northern legend, which tells how the Icelanders raided the coasts of Norway and carried into slavery all the maidens they could find. The Norwegians offered a great ransom to buy them back, but the Icelanders would only return them on one condition, that Hakon, the great Norwegian hero, should come and take their place. He consented. Loaded with chains he was carried to Iceland, and the girls were set free. The King of Iceland made a great feast, and sent for Hakon that he and his nobles might mock and jeer at him. In the midst of the feast Hakon suddenly snapped his chains. With a heavy club he struck down all who tried to seize him. Grasping a torch he set fire to the Palace, managed to get down to the bay, and set fire to all the ships except one. In this he set sail, and returned to his own country.

Iceland had taken a prisoner too strong for it to hold. It never tried again to hold dominion over him. It is only a legend, but it gives a pretty good illustration of what St. Paul meant. To release the captives Christ consented to be taken prisoner by Death. But Death was not strong enough to hold Him—and because He overcome it, He can never die again. That is why He lives to-day.

The Verger's Dream

A village in England had a somewhat eccentric verger, who was not quite right in the head. One Sunday the Rector preached two very gloomy sermons. In them he lamented that the number of Christians seemed to be growing smaller and smaller, and that those who remained were not half as good as their fathers had been.

The old verger went home and said to his wife, "I reckon from what the parson says that Christ must be dead." The next morning he said, "I knew that I was right. I dreamed last night that I saw all the angels dressed in black, going to the Lord's funeral. I reckon our church bell ought to be tolled."

In the middle of his breakfast, the Rector suddenly heard the slow and solemn tolling of his church bell, and went out at once to ask which of the people of the village had suddenly died. The old man told his story, and it was a lesson to that rector. If Christ is alive there is no cause for pessimism. His work cannot fail. We may not see all the results, but we can only see one little corner of the vast field of His influence. If religion seems at a low ebb in England (which it is not), think of the strides it has made in South China within the last 15 years.

The last paragraph gives a second reason for rejoicing. Christ is not the only person who is to rise from the dead. He is only the "the first-fruits of them that sleep. In Him shall all be made alive."

The Grave Of Flowers

In a famous play two little children set out to find the Blue Bird, (which stands for the truth that leads to happiness). The boy is given a magic hat, having on it the diamond that makes people see. When you have the hat on, you turn the diamond around a little. Then it presses a bump, which nobody knows of, and opens your eyes.

They came in their pilgrimage to a country churchyard by night to see the dead. They were both terribly frightened. They imagined that the dead must be awful things, living underground all day, gnawing at the roots of the grass, and coming up to frighten people at night. The boy said that years ago he had seen one of the dead. It was very white, very still and did not speak. As midnight struck, the boy turned the diamond. A dreadful moment followed. The mounds opened, the slabs rose up,—then out of the graves there came nothing except glorious flowers, changing the gloomy churchyard into a lovely garden. Instead of the hideous skeletons they expected, they saw nothing but roses.

"Where are the dead"? asked the little girl. But the boy had grasped the truth. "There are no dead" he said.

Government Appointments

His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to appoint, provisionally and subject to His Majesty's pleasure, Mr. William Henry Bell, to be an Unofficial Member of the Legislative Council, vice the Hon. Mr. Charles Gordon Stewart Mackie, resigned, with effect from April 15, 1935.

His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to appoint Mr. Thomas Stodart Whyte-Smith to be Land Officer, with effect from April 22, 1935.

The appointment of the Rev. Cyril Brown, M.A., to be a probationary Chaplain in the Hong Kong Naval Volunteer Force, with effect from April 10, 1935, is gazetted.

ROBBERY IN NEW TERRITORIES

Cheung Shiu-yin, a married woman residing at No. 907 San Tin Village, Lok Ma Chau district, New Territories, reports that at 12.30 a.m. yesterday a number of men forced open her door, and they after ran-sacking the house for half an hour, decamped with jewellery and clothing to the value of $240. All spoke the Hakka dialect and carried torches. No arrests have been made.

K.C.R. Summer Time-Table

The Kowloon-Canton Railway announce the following as features of their new summer time-table which will come into force next Tuesday.

The timing of the Mid-day fast trains between Kowloon and Canton will be reduced by 26 minutes, leaving Canton at 1 p.m. and Kowloon at 12.35 p.m.

They will arrive at 4.20 p.m. and 3.55 p.m. respectively.

A Slip Coach for the convenience of golfers will be attached to the 8.30 a.m. Flying Arrow Canton Express and slipped at Sheung Shui every Sunday and on Public Holidays.

Hikers will no doubt find the Motor Coach which leaves Kowloon at 2.35 p.m. on Saturdays, Sundays and public holidays and stops at any station on request, of service in arranging their walking programmes.

A later departure has been made for the through goods train to Canton at 2 p.m. without altering its arrival time of 7.28 p.m., thus allowing merchants as much time as possible to fulfill their orders for delivery at Canton the same day.

AGE'S BIG PART IN POLITICS

war, proposed that every man up to the age of 60 should provide himself with five days' provisions and follow him into the field! When the elder citizens murmured he said, "There is no hardship, for I, who am to lead you, am over 80!"

Aged Statesmen

In the fierce fight over the Parliament Bill the chief honours—such as they were in that disastrous controversy—fell to Lord Halsbury, then not merely old but ancient. If it be objected that his was the last desperate splutter of a beaten faction, that cannot be said of other grand old men of still more recent celebrity.

President Masaryk, the founder of modern Czechoslovakia, has just celebrated his 85th birthday. President Hindenburg, who died last year, entered upon the second phase of the career which was to make him for 20 years, in victory and defeat, the idol of the German people, when he was already on the retired list.

I will cite only one name more—that of Georges Clemenceau. When the groundlings scoff at palsied age fumbling at the controls during times of stress and crisis, the old "Tiger" is the best retort. "Pere Victoire!" What a nickname!

A scrap of dialogue may be quoted from one of the late Lord Riddell's "Diaries": it relates to Clemenceau's stubborn attitude at the Peace Conference at Versailles!

Lloyd George: "He is a hard old dog. As Brand said, he was born with one day's good nature inside him, and he used it up pretty quickly."

Riddell: "But at times he rose to great heights."

L.G.: "Yes, he is a great patriot. France is everything to him. He thinks of France and her dangers and her greatness and it rouses in him wonderful emotions."

The French "Tiger"

"Emotions" issuing in victory are worth having. If Georges Clemenceau had lived 2,000 years ago he would have had an honoured place in the entertaining essay which Plutarch wrote on this very question, "Whether Old Men should take part in public life." The historian of Chaeronea—writing when the Roman world seemed happily sunk in firmly established peace—would have matched him with his favourite heroes and not found him wanting.

Age limits are set by practical expediency, not imposed by inexorable natural law. The fire of genius, when it burns in Age, burns with a steady and constant flame. The association of Age with wisdom is not a fiction. But the wisdom must be demonstrated, not assumed, and the reasonable claims of the next contingent must not be denied their just satisfaction too long.

UNREGISTERED MUI TSAI

Widow Remanded

Chau Lim, a widow, was remanded till to-morrow morning when she appeared before Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Central Police Court yesterday morning, charged with aiding and abetting Kwok Wai Chi aged 22 to be a prostitute and with keeping an unregistered mui tsai, Wong Ho, aged 14.

Inspector Andrews said that the Police evidence would not be very long and that they were anxious to go on with the case, but Mr. M. A. Silva had not been able to appear that morning and had requested a date to be fixed at His Worship's convenience.

Bail for $750 was allowed.

BATHING SEASON HERE AGAIN

The first indication of the opening of the summer months proper is contained in the current issue of the Government Gazette, which notifies the public that from Wednesday, May 1, the provision of diving rafts, guard boats etc., at Repulse and Stanley Bays will be resumed for the summer months.

TRANS-PACIFIC AIR TRANSPORT LINE

bound to become a regular port of call on the California-China service; but it would be a pity indeed to lose the advantages of a proper start and to resort later on to adjustments which could be avoided now.

The man in the street will find it difficult to understand just why arrangements cannot be made for the aeroplanes of the Pacific American Airways to land in Hong Kong, which is one of the five biggest seaports and a most important transit travel centre of the globe. The Imperial Airways are making Hong Kong their Eastern terminus and nothing is more logical than to effect a connection between the two aerial giants at a point which is geographically and commercially the most advantageously placed to function as a clearing-house for air travel.

Vital Connections

The incorporation of Hong Kong in the trans-Pacific airway system would mean at the same time the linking up of this Colony with the existing airway system of China and would bring Shanghai within seven hours' and Peiping within 14 hours' air travel, thus making it possible for tourists sojourning in northern ports and having limited time at their disposal, to visit South China quickly and comfortably. Many residents in Shanghai and other northern points who find it impossible to visit South China otherwise, would avail themselves of a direct service which, apart from the speeding-up of mail, would no doubt benefit business in many ways. Such a development would also mean an immediate connection with Canton, with an inevitable increase in travel between the two cities. The traffic figures of European and American air lines definitely prove that the airways are not a competitive but a complementary development and open up travel forces which have been immobilised up to now on account of the time element.

Anybody can easily understand why Hong Kong is not so anxious to effect a European air-link through the French air services operating as far as Hanoi, now that the Imperial Airways have definitely decided to extend their line to Hong Kong, but it does not seem desirable to forgo the manifold advantages that would accrue to the Colony as a result of a direct communication with the United States, supplying the world with the largest quota of travel material, which is perhaps the only tangible invisible import factor capable of counteracting the recent decline in the trade of Hong Kong. What a busy air line means to a community can be judged from the vigorous efforts of both San Francisco and Los Angeles each to induce the promoters of these air services to make their headquarters in their respective city. Los Angeles, whose Union Air terminal saw the arrival of 38,976 revenue passengers in 1934, is particularly anxious to figure in this airway system, which is calculated to become one of the busiest international aerial highways of the world.

Destined For Airport

No one wants to believe that the trans-Pacific airways are being kept out of Hong Kong out of deference to the proposed Singapore-Borneo-Manila-Hong Kong air service The importance of such an airway would equal that of a minor coastal shipping company as against the Dollar Line or Nippon Yusen Kaisha and such an air service would be no doubt invaluable in its own way; but its advantages, compared to those which would follow as a result of a direct United States-Hong Kong air line, cannot be seriously considered from a world point of view. Hong Kong is not only a British Colony, but a transport and travel junction of international magnitude which owes its importance to the development of international communications.

Hong Kong has become a world port thanks to her farsighted policy in considering her larger interests at all times, and only a policy following the line of this historical development will make it possible for Hong Kong to retain and strengthen her superior position in East Asia. Now that China is at the threshold of a development without parallel in the economic annals of the world, Hong Kong, whose interest is closely linked with the future of this development, cannot afford to make a "faux pas" which would mean a set-back in her leadership acquired through the labours of a century.

Sandford, the East Lancs' leader, had had luck just before half-time, when, after a very pretty bout of passing with Lawton and Ridings, he received the ball 10 yards out but shot wide.

East Lancs' Offensive

The East Lancs adopted a definitely aggressive attitude in the second half and gave the Artillery very little chance of breaking away to score.

After 10 minutes Ridings increased the East Lancs' lead, a forward pass from Sandford enabling him to beat Mackrill with ease. Shortly afterwards, Ridings added his second, receiving from Sandford to head the ball over Mackrill's head as he came out. Ten minutes from the end the Artillery staged a comeback, Taylor taking the ball up the wing and centring to Morton. The latter returned it to Taylor, who headed on to Knight, for him deflect the ball across the goalmouth to Edmunds, who converted with a header.

Lucky Fourth Goal

The East Lancs' fourth goal, scored 10 minutes from time was a lucky one. Sandford passed out to the right-wing and Thorpe centred smartly, but the ball curled in and entered the net just below the bar.

After working very hard throughout the game, making opportunities and openings for others, Sandford came into the limelight by scoring the last goal a few minutes from time.

Artillery:—Mackrill; Clancy, Harris; Hunt, Morton, Scott; Rivers, Edmunds, Reece, Knight and Taylor.

East Lancs: —Oxford; Swain, Gorman; Smith, Lawton, North; Thorpe, Hunt, Sandford, Ridings and Tuley.

VOLUNTEER SPORTS

The standard of running was very good and when one takes into consideration the bumpy nature of the ground and the summery conditions, the times recorded were very satisfactory.

Excellent Race

One of the best races of the day was the 880 Yards Relay in which the Mobile Machine Gun Company just beat the Infantry on the tape.

The 440 Yards Hurdles' Relay should have been a certainty for the Mobile Machine Gunners, but Whitham, running last, knocked down the fifth hurdle and thereafter lost his stride, crashing badly on the last hurdle with B. Gosano, of the Infantry, not many feet behind him.

Col. Dowbiggin Runs!

All the old hands were seen in the Officers' and Sergeants' Relay, which caused much amusement. Col. Dowbiggin took a very active part, running among the first batch, and was not far behind his rival.

Miss Dowbiggin upheld the family traditions by winning the Potato Race for the Nursing Section, while Miss Saunders and Miss Sahn came second and third, respectively.

Mobile Win Long Jump

Some very good performances were seen in the long-jump which the Mobile Machine Gunners won with ease, H. R. McGilchrist, prominent on the rugby field, leading the way with a leap of 19 feet 7 inches, closely followed by J. P. Whitham, who failed to better his old mark of over 20 feet, which he established last year at the K.C.C.

A curious incident occurred in the final of the tug-o-war when the Mobile Machine Gunners, after having won the first pull, were pulled off their feet in their second attempt before they had announced their readiness, and, as it was useless trying to make up for their lost ground, they capitulated to reserve their strength for the final pull, which they clinched.

Before asking Mrs. Borrett to distribute the prizes, Major E. J. H. Mitchell, President of the Corps Athletic Committee, said how grateful they were to the Army Area Sports Board for kindly allowing them the use of the Sookunpoo ground on the day following their own sports.

More Competitors Wanted

He said he would like to have seen more competitors, although he admitted, that the meeting was a bigger success than last year's. He then asked Mrs. Borrett to distribute the prizes, following which he presented her with a bouquet.

By kind permission of Lt. Col. R. E. Hindson and Officers, the Band of the Royal Welch Fusiliers rendered selections during the afternoon.

Yachting Season Concluded

here, which is somewhat remarkable in view, not only of his multifarious service duties, but also official duties as well. I am sure we are all glad that he has not only taken the "A" class Corinthian series first prize, but also the prize for the Wednesday series.

"Commodore Elliott presented the Club with a very handsome challenge cup for the "A" class Corinthian races and in thanking him for this I would express our regret that he will not be here another season and would wish him, on your behalf, the best of good luck and every success, particularly in yachting, in which I am sure he will be in evidence whenever he has an opportunity.

"I am glad to welcome Commodore C. Sedgwick here to-day. Although he is not actively interested in yachting we hope he will agree to serve on our sailing and general committee as his predecessors have done for many years past.

New Ideas Satisfactory

"Your Committee has instituted several new ideas this season, most of which I think are popular and will be continued. First the floating marks were tried out in the preliminary races and proved popular. It is propose to continue their use next season in all important races as we believe the extra cost is well spent and adds to the interest, safety and greater variety of courses.

"Our thanks are due to Messrs. Rouse and Croucher for presenting these floating marks to the Club.

"The cruises have been divided into two classes for the championships, the "W" class racing separately. There are eight "W" boats in commission now and one more is being built. The Committee have laid down conditions under which new yachts of this class must be built. These conditions preclude any major alterations from the existing boats, the intention being to standardise the design, without making it a strictly one design class. Some of the earlier boats will probably be given a small handicap.

"There appears to be a growing keenness for long distance cruiser races and we have had, excluding the Macao races, four of these night races in which not less than six yachts have competed in each race.

Illingworth Cup

"The classic in this series is the Illingworth Cup race, which this year was round Single Island. Owing to light winds the race was somewhat disappointing. The last of these races, round Reef Island, was exactly the opposite, and most of you have heard of "Penguin's" plight.

The Club and Service sailing matches have been as popular as ever, the Army beating both the Club and the Navy and the Club beating the Navy.

"Great Britain beat Scandinavia for the Scandinavian Cup on a very hard day. The subscribers beat the members, and the high standard of yachtsmanship which we have always found amongst our subscribers is being very well maintained.

Ladies' Unlucky Year

"The ladies this year have been rather unlucky with the weather, either no wind or too much on a number of occasions. In one race round Stonecutters Island six "A" boats out of nine finished the course, although the wind was force "six," which reflects great credit on these hardy helms-women.

"The Committee heard, at one period, rumblings of discontent from the stronger sex over one race; but as it was arranged in response to a definite demand it was decided to continue with it and after the race the rumblings entirely ceased. The race to which I am referring was the ladies Corinthian race, and I am not sure whether the discontent proved to be unfounded, owing to the tact of the helmswomen; their superior handling of the boats; or just to the fact that it was a jolly good race.

Popular Macao Race

"The Macao race was as popular as ever, and Mr. Cook is to be congratulated on winning it and also on the success of Sea Lark's new rig.

"Only one protest has been heard, while a number of yachts have withdrawn from races due to error of judgment. Many of us have possibly been a little too indulgent in letting unwitting offenders get away with it, and, although the sailing Committee do not like protests, I feel they should be made when errors of judgment occur or the rules are misinterpreted.

Helpers Thanked

"I wish to express our deep thanks to Commander Cowland, who has been a most efficient sailing secretary. (applause) We regret his impending departure and in extending to him our good wishes for the future, we can assure him of a very warm welcome should he return to Hongkong at a later date. (applause)

"The Club have also been fortunate in securing the services of Chief Yoeman of Signals Samson, who has carried out the duties of time-keeper.

"We shall be exceedingly sorry when the Lincolnshire Regiment leave for India early next season. They have been very keen supporters and we hope they will be able to get good sailing in Karachi.

"As regards rowing, we have been badly handicapped by the reclamation work and boats could not be got out until after Christmas when the new slipway was completed. Rowing practice was then resumed and a Regatta arranged for the end of March, but the weather was so bad on the date fixed that the event had to be cancelled. I believe there is no lack of keenness on the part of the rowing members and I hope next year they will be able to carry out their regular programme.

"I will now call on Mrs. Cowland to present the prizes.

TO-DAY'S FOUR FIRST DIVISION SOCCER GAMES

RECREIO MUST WIN AGAINST ATHLETIC

LEAGUE CHAMPIONS' CHANCE FOR REVENGE

For the first time in several months four First Division League soccer games will be down for decision to-day, the Recreio and Athletic clash being the outstanding game, as the former are in the race for the runners-up position and must win all their remaining games.

The Athletic are not likely to field their best eleven as "Darkie" Chan and Tsui Ah-fai are in Canton and very unlikely to make the trip to the Colony for an end of the season game.

Navy At Best

The Navy entertain South China "B" at Causeway Bay, and it will occasion no surprise if they turn the tables on the Senior Shield champions.

The Fusiliers and the Saints clash at Chatham Road where an evenly contested game will take place, while the champions meet the East Lancs; they will thus have an opportunity to avenge their lone League defeat.

The following is to-day's forecast giving the favoured team in capital letters:

FIRST DIVISION

Navy v S. CHINA "B" (Causeway Bay, 4.45 p.m.)
FUSILIERS v St. Joseph's (Chatham Road, 4.45 p.m.)
Athletic v RECREIO (Club ground, 4.45 p.m.)
East Lancs v S. CHINA "A" (Sookunpoo, 4.45 p.m.)

SECOND DIVISION

Athletic v Engineers (Club ground, 3.30 p.m.)

Hong Kong Football Club Dinner

"The nature of to-night's function marks a departure from the usual routine of the annual dinner, and I think the Committee are to be commended for their enterprise. You will note that dancing is to be introduced after dinner and, accordingly, I can imagine the younger and more active members are not particularly anxious to be detained by a series of speeches. I might mention however, that the sub-committee responsible for organising this function have issued instructions that speeches on this occasion must be short, and I am pleased to conform.

Pride In Old Club

"During the season now drawing to a close, the Club has successfully maintained two teams of each code. Our contribution in man power, and our efforts to sustain interest in the game of football, therefore, are being worthily upheld and justify, despite league, shield and tournament results, a certain feeling of pride in the old Club.

"The rugger section had a very active season and gave many displays of good, vigorous, and not unscientific football. The first XV only lost two games during the season, but unfortunately both were tournament games against the Navy. The scores on these occasions were 9 pts. to 8 pts., and 11 pts. to 8 pts. against the Club, and the Navy emerged worthy winners of the Triangular Tournament.

Rugby Interport Handicap

"An interport XV travelled to Shanghai at the end of January. Considerable difficulty was encountered in finding sufficient men to travel and, as is generally the case, the playing strength of the team suffered accordingly. Shanghai succeeded in wresting from us the Interport shield — winning by 17 pts. to 11 pts. We trust that our XV will see to it that the shield will stay here when Shanghai visit us next year.

"The Blarney Stone Shield—the trophy in the 7-a-side tournament, was won by the Club VII after a series of very strenuous and creditable displays of this form of play.

"The second XV played regular Wednesday and a number of Saturday games. This team serves a very useful purpose in finding recruits for the senior XV and they deserve all support and encouragement.

Soccer Revival

"The soccer section have enjoyed a more successful season than has been recorded for some time. The first XI still retain that extraordinary faculty of playing most inspirited and skilful football, and immediately following up such an occasion with a display which almost convinces their supporters that they are looking at an entirely different team. Our first team, however, have played more consistently well during the past season, as reflected in the Shield and League results. They were unlucky to be knocked out in the Shield semi-final and, as I write these notes, we have every hope that they will emerge as runners-up in the League. We now learn that the Club won this afternoon by 5 goals to 3. We congratulate the team on their well merited success.

Howe's Departure

"Unfortunately for the first XI and for the Club, we are losing the brilliant services of Mr. Albert Howe, who goes on transfer to Shanghai. As centre forward for the Club he has been a veritable tower of strength, and has given many remarkably fine exhibitions of talented play. I need hardly say how sorry we are as a Club to lose such an outstanding exponent of the game, and he takes with him our best wishes for a happy and successful sojourn in the northern port.

Junior Team's Advance

"The second XI have also made definite progress, as witness their advance from the usual lowly rung in the League table to almost half way up the ladder. My previous remarks with regard to encouraging the younger plays apply, and they deserve all the support we can give.

"I cannot conclude my review of the Club affairs without reference to the playing field. It has, in my opinion, been nursed into excellent condition, and I wish to congratulate those responsible for the ground on their good work. There is no question that a good ground helps materially towards a better standard of play and it is, after all, one of our chief aims to keep that standard as high as possible.

"The Club used to have a close season during the summer months but, with the advent of a bowling green, conditions have altered considerably. I understand the Bowls season opened this afternoon and I wish our teams every success in their League encounters.

Maintaining High Standard

"And now, gentlemen, I must leave the subject of the Club and its affairs. I hope I have not wearied our guests or made them feel that they have been invited here under false pretences. I would assure them that they have been asked, not to listen to a long-winded history of our Club and the accomplishments of its members, but to enjoy our hospitality and join with us to-night distinguished representatives of the Hong Kong Football Association, of the Navy and Army, of other football Clubs in the Colony, and many others interested like ourselves in the game. It is a privilege to be able to entertain you here to-night so that the friendly relations which should and in most instances do exist between Clubs and the controlling organisation can be improved and further cemented. The game is the thing and, as I previously remarked, we must all exert ourselves to maintain a high standard.

"I do not propose to refer individually to our guests, but to them all I would extend on behalf of the Club a very warm welcome.

"I now give you the toast of "Our Guests," coupled with the name of Mr. M. K. Lo, the senior vice-president of the Hong Kong Football Association, whose work in fostering interest in the game of football we gratefully acknowledge."

Mr. Lo Replies

Mr. M. K. Lo, replying on behalf of the guests in a few well-chosen words, thanked Sir Henry Pollock for the munificent hospitality which had been extended to all the guests and said he very much appreciated the honour of being asked to reply on their behalf.

Mr. H. R. ("Rusty") Forsyth also made a short speech (which was the ruling of the table) in which he congratulated the Royal Navy on retaining the Triangular Trophy, which he handed over to Lt. Forbes, the Navy skipper. He said he hoped the Club would make an effort to get the trophy back next year.

Lt. Forbes, replying on behalf of the Navy, said it was a pleasure to receive the trophy. The Navy rugger side had the older members of the Senior Service to thank for their victories, as they had done the major work and helped considerably.

LAPSES BY WILDY COST LINCOLNS THE POINTS

The Lincolns suffered their first setback 10 minutes after the commencement when Wildy, in an attempt to clear a shot from Bumster caught the ball on the side of his foot and deflected it into the net. Both teams then increased the pace, but the Lincolns obtained the equaliser only five minutes from half time, McGuinness passing forward for Turner, who was right on top of the goal, to score.

Lincolns Take Lead

The Lincolns took the lead a few minutes after the recommencement, Rush making a deliberate effort from 10 yards out; Saunders dived, but could not reach the ball which entered the net just inside the upright. A few minutes later a pass back from a goalmouth scramble enable Bumster to catch Taylor napping and obtain the Fusiliers' equaliser. The Lincolns missed an opportunity when Toyne took a free kick just outside the area; he passed across to Rush, but the latter directed the ball over the top. The second unfortunate mishap by Wildy occured 10 minutes from time; Evans centred and Wildy kicked back to Taylor, a ground shot travelling fairly fast which the Lincolns goalkeeper saw when it was too late to stop it. Evans obtained the Fusiliers last goal just before time.

Lincolns:—Taylor; Martin, Dobbs; Chapman, Wildy, Ebbett; Day, Rush, Turner, McGuinness and Toyne.

Fusiliers:—Saunders; Davies, Guisley, Ellis, McHugh, Jones, Parry, Sullivan, Bumster, Cresty and Evans.

Standard Of Rugger

Lt. Forbes remarked that two members of the Navy team in Hongkong had played for the Navy against the Army at Home this year, which went a long way to prove that the standard of rugger out here was not far below that of Home.

He was leaving the Colony shortly for Home, but felt that he must express his appreciation of playing against the Club and thanked them for the hospitality which they had extended to the Navy throughout the season.

Lt. Comdr. D. Orr-Ewing, who is a member of the Navy rugger selection Committee, corroborated his friend's remarks, but added that the Navy had a rugger field which they hoped would be ready for the next season.

Mr. Albert Howe, the Club's soccer skipper, who is leaving for Home and Shanghai on May 8, was then called on. He thanked the Club and his soccer satelites for his very enjoyable tenure of play with them since his arrival in the Colony.

Following the dinner, the tables were cleared for dancing, and by midnight well over 300 people were present.

Submarines Win Soccer Cup

Goal By Hughes Seals Medway's Fate

The Final of the Fourth Submarine Flotilla Football Cup, between H.M.S. Medway and the Submarines, on the Causeway Bay Ground yesterday, resulted in a win for the Submarines by a goal to nil.

The game throughout was very fast and exciting, and this, coupled with wholehearted and clean spirited play, was a pleasant change, and a treat to witness.

The Submarines, however, fully deserved their victory, being the more resourceful team, and displaying more direct methods than those of their opponents. The Medway owed much to their half-backs that the margin was not wider, and also to Haymen, their goalkeeper, who performed splendidly. Clift and Cox, the full-backs, did not have a really good game, often being at fault through bad positioning and wild kicking. Johnson and Milan, on the wings, did as well as could be expected, but the inside men disappointed, and Bates, a useful centre, lacked support.

Regarding the Submarines team, very few faults could be found, their excellent positional play and smart combined movements being a feature of the game.

Haymen Saves Well

Play opened with an immediate attack by the Subs, but a fast rising shot from Hughes was very capably dealt with by Haymen. Hughes again secured a few minutes later, and, cleverly drawing the defence, sent a fine through pass to Richardson, but the latter, with a very hasty effort, ballooned over the bar—a glorious opportunity wasted! Both teams appeared to have settled down at this point of the game, and several determined exchanges were witnessed. The Subs. goal looked very much in danger when, following a miskick by Hunt, Buckland ran out of his goal to clear, and a race between him and Johnson, the opposing outside-right, ended with the latter securing, and, placing the ball goalwards—a goal looked certain, but the slight breeze blowing across the pitch, was just sufficient to carry the ball around the upright. Both sides tried hard to establish a lead, but neither were successful before the interval.

The opening exchanges of the second half were fairly even, but the Subs. gradually assumed command as the game progressed, and eventually took the lead through Hughes, who had Haydon well beaten with a splendid low drive to the corner.

Syd Strange put up a good show at left-half, being a great help in the defence, and distributing some good passes to Howe and Bickford.

Howe quickly found that in Gough and Brooks he was up against a brick-wall, and with the Club line to all intents and purposes leaderless, it was merely a succession of individual efforts that troubled the Police defence. Pearce again gave an excellent display, and proved a splendid partner to the speedy Bickford—but when will the Club wake up to the genuine capabilities of Bickford and give him more, and better chances, to prove his worth? Once again he was left almost continuously alone, being forced to forage for himself in the end.

Poor Wing Pair

Elliott and Fowler took a long time to settle down, and the latter seemed slow, being very listless, whilst Elliott, given several good openings, put each one yards wide of the target.

The Police defence, never given a real test until the last few minutes, showed extreme unsteadiness, Blackburn kicking very wildly at times. Johnston, and later Chris Pile, in the left-back berth, kicked well, but the tackling and positioning was well below the usual form of the Police defence.

Dominating Halves

The halves were again the dominating power in the Police team. Brooks, up to the time of his injury, gave his best display of the season, and it was in vain that Howe and Bickford, or for that matter, any of the Club forwards, endeavoured to pass him. Really clever tackling, and a fine sense of anticipation, coupled with excellent passing, were the keynotes of a brilliant performance. He was ably supported by Gough and Parker, though the latter, injured in a collision with Robertson and off the field for several minutes, was unable to give of his best.

Tommy Pile was the best of a not too brilliant line of forwards, his splendid speed and ball control always causing consternation in the Club defence. Unfortunately he did not receive the support he was entitled to, Green appearing slow and timid, and Bone, rather out of his class, was always too far back to help push home an attack. Chris Pile sent over many fine centres, and, with Moss, made up a dangerous left-wing, but it was seldom that they were given time to manoeuvre into a shooting position. Many chances were missed by erratic shooting, especially by Green.

Pile Gives Police Lead

The Club opened with a fierce attack, and McHardy brought off a good save from a stinging shot by Pearce. After about five minutes, however, the Police got into their stride, and from a corner, accurately placed by Chris Pile, T. Pile netted at the second attempt.

Three minutes later McHardy was penalised for carrying, and from the free kick, only 5 yards out, Bickford sent it to Elliott, whose quick shot took the Police completely by surprise.

With Parker off the field with a knee injury, Brook secured from a corner, and shot hard for goal, the ball being deflected off Green's head past the unsighted Rodger.

Howe Scores Equaliser

Parker returned shortly after this success, and the Police played very confidently, giving the Club defence a thorough testing. Just before the interval however, Forrow sent a pass forward to Pearce, who transferred to Bickford, but the centre was pushed out by McHardy. Howe, however, secured and quickly shot into the empty goal to place the Club on level terms again.

After eight minutes in the second half, Tommy Pile broke through, and scored, but the referee disallowed a goal, awarding a penalty against the Club for hands against Gamble, and Moss converted the spot-kick.

Brooks unfortunately stopped a hard kick by Howe, and had to leave the field, badly winded, and it was during his absence that the Club staged their final desperate rally to gain a point. They surprised themselves by gaining two!

Club Revival

A corner on the left, splendidly placed by Bickford, caused a long and fierce goalmouth melee before Blackburn eventually cleared. After Elliott had shot over, Robertson brought the ball right down the field before passing to Fowler, whose low drive found McHardy well beaten.

Stimulated by this success, the Club went all out, and a minute later, Parker kicked out to Howe, whose quick shot through a sea of legs entered the net in the far corner. Not content with taking the lead, the Club went further ahead a minute later, Fowler making a grand run in which he beat Pile and Blackburn to score with a hard cross-drive.

The last three goals were scored in the space of four minutes; in all, five minutes from time—a glorious finish to an exciting tussle. This win has placed the Club firm favourites for League runners-up.

Club:— Rodger; Gamble, Hill; Robertson, Forrow, S. Strange; Fowler, Elliott, Howe, Pearce and Bickford.

Police:—McHardy; Blackburn, Johnston; Brooks, Gough, Parker; T. Pile, Bone, Green, Moss and C. Pile.

GUNNERS FAIL

South China Prove Too Good

South China had an easy task in their Second Division soccer encounter against the Artillery at Caroline Hill yesterday, winning by three goals to nil.

In the first 10 minutes of the game Ip Yun-po scored for South China with a fine shot from close quarters, and shortly afterwards they secured their second goal when Chau Wing-kau took a corner kick which was nicely placed for Yau Wa-hing to net from close range.

After the interval, with South China leading by two goals, the Gunners tried hard to change their tactics, but the Chinese defence was in good trim and their forwards were too fast for the Artillerymen.

It was not long before South China netted their third and final goal when Kwok Yau-loy, playing at inside right netted from close range with a fast ball.

South China:— Lee Chuen; Tang Chung-pak, Cheung Ying-chuen; Ho Chi-wing, Yau Wa-hing, Wau Cho-lok; Ip Yun-po, Kwok Yau-loy, Lai Tai-chol, Ip Koon-ming and Chau Wing-kau.

Artillery:— Hancock; Grant, Gardner; Roscoe, Sargent, Fisher; Nash, Latham, Bedford, Bloor and Sparkes.

"LES QUATZ' ARTS"

Lampooned by himself, this cartoon depicts Mr. A. Ney, advertising man, commercial artist, journalist and musician, who recently arrived in the Colony to join the staff of the Advertising and Publicity Bureau Ltd.

Mr. Ney has nearly a quarter of a century's experience of advertising art and display and his work has taken him to many lands, tropical and otherwise.

An advertising life is a busy one, yet Mr. Ney has found time to study music and has played the guitar at the Wigmore Hall, London, and, as "Karl Caylus," has broadcast his own compositions and conducted his Quintet, "The Karl Caylus Players," at B.B.C. studios, London, where his regular broadcasts of light Continental music were a source of pleasure to many millions of listeners.

EAST LANCS DEFEAT ATHLETIC

Winners Not Extended In Fast Game

HARWOOD SCORES TWICE

The East Lancs gained a comfortable win over the Athletic on the Club ground yesterday in their Second Division soccer clash, scoring three goals without reply.

The East Lancs set up a determined attack from the start, but were beaten back, and the Athletic then enjoyed a brief spell of attacking.

After 10 minutes, however, the East Lancs opened the scoring through Harwood, who beat Li Kwok-ki with a hard cross-drive.

Continuing to press, Li Kwok-ki dealt splendidly with efforts by Cox, Swain, and Mather. The East Lancs were having all the play at this stage, and it was not long before a second goal materialised; Swain sent over to Ashurst, whose first-time shot flashed into the net before Li Kwok-ki could move.

The Athletic struggled along, trying desperately to ease the pressure and bring their own forwards into action, but their efforts were repelled by a stalwart defence.

Chinese Improve

In the second half the Chinese managed to get more cohesion into their attack, and Harmsworth was called upon to save from Lau Wai-man, Lai Wah-tai, and Pang Kam-hung.

In the closing stages the East Lancs forced the pace more, and set up a continuous attack during the last 10 minutes. After shots by Cox and Radcliffe had been well saved by Li Kwok-ki, Harwood secured a pass from Mather, and netted from close quarters.

At the other end Tse For-liu cut through and brought Harmsworth full length with a splendid drive.

E. Lancs:— Harmsworth; Garswood, Steele; Cox, Walkden, Eckersley; Swain, Ashurst, Harwood, Radcliffe and Mather.

Athletic:— Li Kwok-ki; Chau Shiu-chui, Li Wing-sang; Wong Wing-lim, Chan Shiu-man, Lau Tai-so; Lau Wai-man, Tse For-liu, Pang Kam-hung, Lai Wah-tai and Mok Ping-wah.

ENGINEERS LEAVE IT LATE

Eleventh Hour Goal Beats Eastern

HURST SCORES DECIDER

The Engineers were very fortunate to secure both points yesterday when they defeated the Eastern Athletic in their Second Division soccer encounter at King's Park by 2 goals to 1.

The Engineers opened their scoring with a long shot from Darby. Following up their advantage, the Sappers pressed for a period, but with a packed goal their efforts came to nought owing to hesitancy in shooting.

Towards the interval Lai Ting Chol sent in a high shot from the wing to equalise the score. Sellek ran out to bring the ball down, but, failing to hold it properly, the ball passed over his shoulder and rolled into the net.

From the resumption the Eastern played faster and better football and had the Sappers on the defensive for long periods. During a Sapper raid, however, Hurst secured the winning goal when, receiving in the centre, he sent in a fast ground shot which Ng Chu Nam failed to reach.

Engineers:—Sellek; Slack, Dudley; Denham, Hurst, Boyling; Callard, Howlett, Darby, McGrath and Creagh.

Eastern:—Ng Chu-nam; Lai Kul-fai, Ng Nim-kay; Chan Yum-fat, Ho Chi-yeung, Kwong Ying-wai; Li Ping-tong, Fung Tsoi-po, Chueng Shui-hon, Sung Ling-sang and Lai Ting-choi.

FUSILIERS BEAT RECREIO

Singleton Scores The Only Goal

At King's Park yesterday the Fusiliers defeated the Recreio in their Third Division soccer encounter by the only goal scored.

Silva and Maher in the Recreio defence gave a very sound display and undoubtedly saved them from a greater defeat. Figueroido, in the pivotal position, was most outstanding, greatly assisting in the attack and defence. In the Fusilier eleven Slack broke up many short passing movements and was the mainstay of the team.

It was not until the last few minutes of the game that Singleton, receiving from a corner kick, headed in to score the only goal in a very even and interesting encounter.

THE KING'S SILVER JUBILEE MEDAL

Personal Souvenir From His Majesty

SELECTED INDIVIDUALS FOR THE AWARD

The King has approved the issue of a Silver Medal to be known as "The King's Silver Jubilee Medal." in commemoration of the 25th anniversary of His Majesty's accession to the Throne. Some 80,000 Medals will be struck for issue as a personal souvenir from His Majesty to persons in the Crown Services and others in Great Britain and in other parts of the Empire. The Medal is restricted to British subjects, and is intended for the most part for members of the Crown Services. Individuals selected for the award will receive the Medal on or shortly after the May 6, but the Medals will not be worn on May 6, except by special instruction.

Medal Described

The following is a description of the Medal, which has been designed by Sir William Goscombe John, R.A.:—

Obverse Conjoint busts of Their Majesties the King and Queen, crowned and robed, looking to the left, with the inscription around GEORGE V AND QUEEN MARY MAY VI MCMXXXV.

Reverse The Royal Cypher G.R.I. surmounted by the Crown with the dates MAY 6 1910 and MAY 6 1935 on either side, the whole within an ornamental border.

The medal will be worn suspended by a ring from a ribbon 1¼ inch wide with a red centre stripe ¾ inch wide and two blue stripes and one white stripe of equal width on either side. Diameter of medal—1¼ inch.

Official Medal

The King's Silver Jubilee Medal is classified as an official medal, to be worn, on all occasions on which decorations and medals are worn, on the left breast after all Jubilee, Coronation and Durbar Medals, which follow War Medals in the Order of Precedence. Ladies who have no other decorations or medals will wear the Jubilee Medal on the left shoulders of the dress, the ribbon in this case being in the form of a bow. Ladies who are already in possession of official medals worn on a bar may, if they wish, add the Jubilee Medal to the bar instead of wearing it separately on a bow.

Applications from individual members of the public cannot be entertained.

Medal For Public

The other commemorative medal, which has been prepared by the Royal Mint by the King's Command for sale to the public, is not classified as an official medal and may not be worn.

It is also notified that any medals manufactured commercially for sale on the occasion of the Jubilee should not be worn in such a manner that they might be confused with the Official Medal awarded by His Majesty.

SUBMARINES WIN SOCCER CUP

From this point of the game, the Medway played liked a demoralised side, and were kept on the defensive right to the final whistle. The Cup was presented to the Captain of the winning side by Mrs. Coltart, following a brief speech by Captain Coltart, R. N.

Submarines: — Buckland; Hunt, Nicholson; Nicholls, Martin, Newman; Doran, Parrott, Richardson, Hughes and Simmonds.

Medway:— Haymen; Clift, Cox; Watts, Pugsley, Lobb; Millan, Rose, Bates, Lt. Benson and Johnson.

FOREIGN EVACUATION PREPARED AT YUNNANFU

PRECARIOUS POSITION OF KUNMING

GOVERNMENT TROOPS NOT ENOUGH TO STEM RED ADVANCE

[From Our Own Correspondent]

Canton, Yesterday.

The towns and villages in Eastern Yunnan are being thoroughly looted by the Communists, who have been in occupation of Pingyee and Loping since Monday last. With only about two brigades at his disposal, General Lung Yun, the G.O.C. in Yunnan, has made no plans to drive out the Communists but is concentrating all efforts in safeguarding Yunnanfu, alias Kunming, the provincial capital.

Busy with looting, the Reds have not taken any precise direction yet. Loping is a strategic position. From there the Communists can march farther into Yunnan, return to Kweichow or penetrate into Kwangsi. It is likely that the Red riff-raff will either attack Yunnanfu or proceed northward in the direction of Szechuen.

Some anxiety is felt among the foreign population in Yunnanfu. Most of them are missionaries of various denominations. In the event of danger, they will be evacuated by railway to Indo-China or by aeroplane to Kwangsi or elsewhere.

Yunnan troops are good fighters but the invading bandits are too numerous for them.

The fate of Yunnanfu will probably be known by the end of the week.

THE PASSING HOUR

ancient sculptures photographs of which will possibly be amongst the mementos of this journey. Turning due South, and skirting Utai, — which means the "Five Plateaux," — the great monastery of Taichow will be a resting place for a visit of some weeks. This monastery used to be a great resort for the most learned mandarins for meditations of several days, and it is still famous and much frequented. Taiyuanfu, the next stage, is the starting point of the Railway that runs right South to Hankow, and as this will within a couple of years be linked up with Canton, it is quite possible that we may soon be able to step into a train at Kowloon and step off it in the middle of this most ancient seat of Chinese civilization, including the two old capitals of Sianfu and Loyang, to which one can get by a change at the Railway Junction of Chungchow. For the globetrotter there will be lots of attractions such as the caves at Lungman, the Dragon Gate, and the huge rocks shaped into a figure of Buddha.

CONVEYANCES

NOT that the globetrotter is an ideal object; but most of us cannot visit these places in any other capacity. We have neither the linguistic training to find our own way about and converse with those from whom interesting information can be obtained, nor the hardly digestion to thrive on monotonous vegetarianism. Even now it seems that the true conditions of pilgrimage are melting away, as regards leisureliness if not discomforts. For most of the route it is possible to ride in primitive motor buses, hot and dusty and ramshackle, but at any rate more speedy than palanquins. It is only on a map that the distances look short; and the thought of the ranges of history comprised in the area covered by such a journey, one is rather taken aback at the reflection that our study of history is so narrowly limited both geographically and temporally. But when even this big area is compared with the vast stretches of country lying to the West, all thickly populated and restless with new ideas from Moscow clashing with old ideas from India and from the Eastern Provinces, the imagination is daunted, and the presumption of anyone who prophecies the future of China in her clash with occidental thought and invention and method is seen to be absurd. Sympathetic interpretation and understanding is the task of the moment, and quite big enough for our generation.

CANTON OFFICIALS ON TOUR

To Study Conditions In The North

Canton, Yesterday.

The high officials of the political training departments of the First Group Army which were recently abolished are making a tour of the north to study military, political, economic, and civic conditions.

It is learned that the tourists are incorporated into three parties The first party left for Shanghai yesterday. SOUTHWEST AIR LINE'S PROJECT

Share Capital To Be Increased

Canton, Yesterday.

With a view to extending their air lines, the Southwest Aviation Corporation has decided to increase the number of its shares by $1,000,000 (national currency) to be subscribed by the people.

According to the Corporation, $400,000 will be raised in Kwangtung, $250,000 in Kwangsi, and $350,000 in Yunnan, Kweichow, and Fukien. As soon as the money is collected, more new planes will be purchased for the extension of their air lines.—Central Press.

FISHING STATION FOR KWANGSI

Effort To Extend The Industry

Canton, Yesterday.

With a view to developing fishery in Kwangtung and Kwangsi, the Agriculture and Forestry Bureau of these two provinces are contemplating the establishment of a fish raising station in Kweiping, Kwangsi.

A conference was held between the directors of the two bureaux and it was decided that funds for initial expenses and for maintaining the station will be appropriated by them.—Central Press.

of you,' she broke in. 'He's shamed that ever he knew you.'

"'And you, Fiddy? Is it shamed you are?'

"She walked restlessly round the table. I'll not see bloodshed here. Come!' And she led him to a bedroom, which he guessed was hers.

"She opened the door of a cupboard. 'Get you in there. I'll do my best to keep them away.'"

"O'Malley lay back thankfully in the darkness. There were her clothes hung in the cupboard, they were soft to lean against and fragrant to O'Malley, who'd smelt nothing but rain and straw and the earth for many months.

"He was easy in his mind about his safety, for Fiddy was quick-witted and he trusted her. And presently he dozed off, so that he sat up with a start and blinked at the light when she opened the door.

"Her face was white, but she was not trembling.

"'It's gone they are, Mike,' And he felt fit to sing when he heard that name from her once more.

"He stepped out, stiffly, and stretched himself.

"'Michael O'Malley, look what you've done!'

"He looked, and saw her dresses which had hung in the cupboard. They were soiled and mud-stained from his clothes. Dainty muslin and lace—for Fiddy made the most of herself—but now all daubed and spoilt.

"A small thing it was to him, and he laughed. 'Indeed, it's a pity; but why should you fret yourself? I'll buy you new ones. You shall have dresses,' he went on, warming up to his subject, like the gentleman he was, 'dresses that the finest lady in Dublin wouldn't be shamed to wear.'

"'If you are thinking I'd wear your gowns you'd best cease thinking,' she snapped. 'My clothes are honest bought.'

"O'Malley was shocked. 'Why, Fiddy, that's no way to talk to your old friend. But since you're so delicate-minded we won't speak of it again.'

"She wasn't over pleased at that either, and shut the cupboard with a bang.

"'It's time you were going, Michael O'Malley.'

"'What? Going?. Is it yourself that will be thinking of turning me out?'

"'It is.'

"'Into the night, with police waiting for me to walk into their arms?'

"'They are gone.'

"'They are not. They'll be sending for reinforcements and standing at every two yards down the lane.'

"'But what will I do else, Mike? 'Tis neither right nor proper for you to stay, with father and Patrick away.'

"'What does right or proper matter to a beautiful girl like you? It's fond of you I am, Fiddy, and always have been.'

"She tilted her nose in the air. 'You, with women in hundreds who kiss the ground you walk on! It's half the women of Ireland that are in love with you.'

"'And what should that matter, Fiddy? It it's true, you should be proud that it's you I'd be with to-night. Isn't it yourself that's more lovely than all the women of Ireland?'

"She weakened, and when O'Malley's strong arms went round her, and when his bold head bent towards her, she couldn't be bothered thinking what was right or proper.

"It was dawn when he left, creeping through the back door softly to saddle Nelly.

"Fiddy went to him, with food packed to last him through the day. Her face looked white and drawn in the cold blue light, but she said never a word of grief or complaint.

"It was O'Malley who turned to her and said, 'I shall come back and marry you, Fiddy.'

"She smiled, but her eyes were wet.

"'You'll not come, Mike. You'll be away and roving, and there will be other women.

"'I shall come.' He bent down from the saddle, looking at her earnestly, 'Listen, Fiddly! I shall come back in three months' time. That will be the tenth day of June. Get you the priest and wait for me at the church. I shall be there if I am still alive.'

"She didn't believe him, but she went to the priest and told him what was in her heart, and he meditated deeply.

"Then he roused himself and sighed. 'It is a grievous problem, my child.'

"'Maybe you don't hold with marrying us, so?'

"'Maybe I don't O'Malley's a thief, yet you should be married. And it was myself that thrashed him when he was a boy. And he smiled at the memory, for never had he known so lovable a child.

"'He will not come,' said Fiddy.

"'Sure and he may not,' the priest replied.

"But when the tenth day of June had come, they went to the church to wait, and when the morning faded to noon, and he had not come, Fiddy shook her head sadly, and to herself she murmured, 'Half the women of Ireland.'

FAMOUS PARTNERS SEPARATED

Laurel And Hardy's Last Film?

DISPUTE WITH PRODUCER OVER NEW STORY

Stanley Laurel, famous woebegone half of Laurel and Hardy, still hopes that the old partnership is not broken up after all.

Speaking over the Transatlantic telephone to the Sunday Dispatch recently, he said that negotiations to prevent the break-up were still going on with Mr. Harold Roach, the producer.

"I hope the difficulty that has arisen can be patched up," he added.

"Oliver Hardy and I are very good friends—just like brothers.

"We have had no quarrel, but I could not agree to the story of a film we were asked to start next week.

PART CANCELLED

"Mr. Roach therefore cancelled my part and says he is finding a new partner for Hardy.

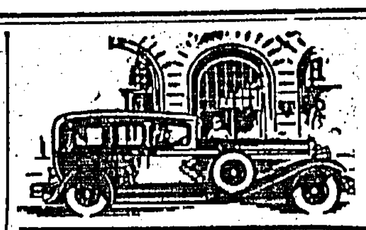
"Shall we join forces again when the new film is completed?

"I should like to very much, but Hardy is tied up with a contract with Roach.

"I hope to come to England soon, because I need a holiday.

"I have no film plans for the future. This situation has arisen so suddenly I have not had time to think about future work.

"Please make it clear that this is purely a dispute with the studio, and that Oliver and I are as good friends as ever."



MOTORING NOTES - -

A LEGAL LIMIT OF 80 M.P.H.

Professor's Opinion Adopted

The State of Iowa, U.S.A., has employed the Professor of Engineering at the State College to determine what is the maximum safe speed for motorcars, with the result that laws have been passed setting 80 m.p.h. as the legal limit. Dr. Ralph A. Moyer, whose tests led to the adoption of this figure, recommended the speed as being safe on trunk highways where the vision ahead extended for 1,000 yards, with the proviso that drivers realised that they needed 500 yards to pull up.

HINTS ON 'SAFE DRIVING'

Brake early and firmly, but not savagely.

Some motorists seem afraid to use their brakes. Others brake in fierce spasms. The first type, usually with top gear engaged, have little control over their cars. The second type ruin their tyres and brakes on a dry road, and are asking for manslaughter or suicide on a wet one.

CAR SEATING SHOULD BE IMPROVED

Uncomfortable Driving Positions

Doctors have recently discovered that motor car seating is often not as good as it ought to be, and in the "British Medical Journal" there has been quite a lot of correspondence on the malady they call "motor backache." Car owners who have suffered from the complaint will agree that something should be done about it.

It is astonishing how uncomfortable many cars are. The longer you sit in them the less at ease you feel. The driver has most reason to complain, because he feels the strain when he has been at the wheel for any appreciable time, and his seat is not at the right angle, or it is too high, too low, too soft, or too hard.

REGULAR PLUG INSPECTION

The leading oil companies, realising that the type and condition of sparking plugs can reflect well or badly on their petrol products, are urging motorists, through their service station men and dealers, to have sparking plugs inspected and tested at regular intervals.

TRUMP PLAY

By LT.-COL. H. M. BEASLEY

THERE are two main types of trump play, and they are very distinct one from the other; dependent entirely on the combinations and distribution of the partnership hands. With type "A" it is imperative to commence by drawing out trumps. With type "B" it would be suicidal to draw out the trumps, inasmuch as it is essential to make as many trumps as possible separately.

The first question the declarer must ask himself after the opening lead has been made, and he has seen the dummy, is—

"Is this the type of hand where I should draw out the trumps, or will I make more tricks by adopting the cross-ruffing process and making as many of my trumps as possible, separately?

The decision will naturally be determined by the contents of the partnership hands. If the hands contain (a) the command of the trump suit, and (b) side suits which can be established, it is then vital to commence by drawing out the trumps.

If, on the other hand, the partnership hands are unevenly distributed, with no establishable side suit, and a doubtful control of the trump suit, it would be suicidal to commence by drawing out trumps; and in lieu, a cross-ruffing process should be adopted.

Needless to say that with a certain number of hands you may embark on one procedure and find it is impracticable, and with other hands it may be necessary to adopt a combination of the two procedures; that is to say, possibly, commence by making one or two cross-ruffs, and then proceed to draw trumps.

The choice of the plan upon which you will embark depends to a large extent on the distribution of the hands.

When the hands are more or less evenly distributed there is little or no opportunity to utilise trumps by cross-ruffing. It is then advisable to commence drawing out one or two rounds of trumps. The following is one of the normal types of hands where this procedure should be adopted.

North:—
S.—A Q 8 2
H.—Q 6 5
D.—K J 8 4
C.—10 6

South:—
S.—K 10 4
H.—K 10 9 8 4
D.—10 6
C.—A J 5

The contract is four Hearts by South, and the opening lead is the four of Clubs by West. East plays the King of Clubs on the first trick. South can then calculate as follows: He will certainly lose one Heart trick, one Diamond trick, and one Club trick.

If he can find the Queen of Diamonds in West's hand, and if he confine his losses in trumps to only one trick, the Ace, he will make his contract. With combined hands of this order there is nothing to be gained by ruffing and everything to be lost, should the opponents obtain a trick by ruffing one of your winning cards. Therefore, commence operations by leading a trump.

Here is the other side of the picture, where hands are unevenly distributed, for example:—

North:—
S.—A 9 7 4
H.—Q 6 5
D.—K Q 9 7 4
C.—10

South:—
S.—K 6
H.—K 10 9 8 4
D.—10
C.—A J 6 5 4

The contract is four Hearts by South. The opening lead is the three of Spades from West.

With a hand of this description, where the declarer's and dummy's hands are both unevenly distributed, and there is little or no possibility of establishing side suits, it would be suicidal to attempt to draw out trumps. The cross-ruffing process must therefore be adopted.

It is well to bear in mind that when two hands are unevenly distributed, there is the possibility that the opponents' hands are also unevenly distributed. If the opponents have taken part in the bidding you will probably have some inkling as to the distribution of their hands. The information thus obtained will be some guide to you, and assist you in selecting your plan of campaign.

Public Enemy

"But even as she did so, there was the sound of a horse approaching, and Nelly trotted up, though none would have recognised her, for she was pure white all over, as if she were here own ghost.

"O'Malley got down stiffly, and swayed a little, then walked towards Fiddy and the priest.

"'I have come,' he said.

"Fiddy caught his hand anxiously. 'Is it sick you are, Mike?'

"'No. Tired.' And he begged the priest to proceed immediately with the ceremony.

"The priest called in the witnesses he had brought, and with due reverence, though as swiftly as possible, made them man and wife.

"When he had finished, O'Malley turned to Fiddy. 'Michael O'Malley keeps his word,' he said, and he fell like a log.

"They knelt beside him, opened his shirt, and the priest brought water. But it was no use. O'Malley was dead.

Afterwards, they found that he had been shot as he was riding to his wedding. Better get him dead, said justice, if we cannot get him alive.

"But O'Malley would never be beaten. He had to finish the job he was doing, and even Death himself had to wait O'Malley's pleasure."

Shawn stopped, as suddenly as he had begun, so that I found myself asking, "Is that all?"

"Yes," said Shawn, "that is all."

"And how," I went on, trying, I confess, to trip him up, "how do you know the details of that story."

"From Fiddy O'Malley I had them."

"Oh! And what made her tell you?"

He seemed to grow at least two inches taller and broader.

"Michael O'Malley was my father."

"I see. But your name?"

"My mother married again," he said hastily, and changed the subject.

I had a word with old James Cleary later.

"That Shawn is a smart lad," I said. "He can spin a yarn all right."

"Sure and he can," Cleary agreed, grinning. "And what lies has he been telling you now?"

"Lies? Well—hardly. I was hearing about his father."

Cleary's grin grew broader. "Ah! His father. He's fond of telling that one."

"But isn't it true that his father was O'Malley, the Public Enemy?"

"True enough that his father was the Public Enemy. He still is. He's the tax-collector, Owen Grant, bad luck to him!"

"But O'Malley——"

Cleary rubbed his hands on his white apron. "Our Shawn likes his little romance. His parentage is a sore trial to him. He would have been O'Malley's son, but he arrived six months too late."

"So Fiddy didn't cherish Michael's memory for long?"

"Her second wedding took place in December of the same year. But it was a sensible woman Fiddy was. She'd had a nasty shock with Michael, and she didn't want to be a widow twice over. She knew that tax-collectors live longer than other thieves." And James Cleary burst so violently into politics that neither I nor all Ossian's heroes could have stemmed the flood.

I listened.

AL CAPONE FIGHTS FELLOW-CONVICT

Four Days' Solitary Confinement

Al Capone, former Chicago gangster and original "Public Enemy No. 1" of the United States, was last month sent to solitary confinement for four days at the Alcatraz Island penitentiary as a result of a fight with a fellow convict.

A prison official said that Capone struck at a fellow prisoner after an argument. The other convict struck back, but the blow fell short and his fist hit a piece of machinery.

Guards separated the prisoners, and sent them both to dungeons.

JAPANESE PICTURE EXHIBITION

Half-Yearly Display At Messrs. Komor's

FAVOURABLE OPPORTUNITY FOR PURCHASERS

Collectors of Japanese paintings will be pleased to know that Messrs. Komor and Komor have opened, for 10 days only, their half-yearly exhibition of water colours, by the foremost artists of Japan, Terauchi, Kobayashi, Banson, Ito and others.

The tendency of the present generation of Japanese to retrieve from foreign possession the famous paintings of Hiroshigi, Hokusai, Kaniyoshi and other artists of the past and to collect the best of the present day productions makes the accumulation of paintings for exhibition and sale all the more difficult in these days and it is to the credit of Messrs. Komor and Komor that they have been able to secure such a fine selection for exhibition at their well known art gallery.

Chinese Scenes

An innovation this year is the exhibition of several Chinese scenes by Ternuchi, an artist well known to Hong Kong, whose pictures have always created a sensation wherever they have been shown. Among the many in the exhibition No. 3, "China Junk," may be mentioned as a marvellous piece of lifelike art. Another painting worthy of special mention is No. 1, "The Alps of Japan," so realistic that it almost makes one shiver with cold to look at it.

The doyen of Japanese artists, Kobayashi, now an old man, but the touch of whose brush is as delicate as it was years ago, is represented by several paintings, of which No. 5, "Nikko," is particularly beautiful.

Kano, the wizard of so-called atmospheric views, is also well represented.

Favourable Exchange

An outstanding water colour in this Exhibition is No. 39, "Man" by Yamamoto, whose work will be well remembered from former exhibitions here. This is a most remarkable picture of a man in a snowstorm.

Exchange on Japan being so favourable to Hong Kong, pictures that previously sold for $5 can now be bought for $2, all other prices being in proportion. There are about 300 pictures nicely mounted, costing from $2 upwards, all of which would make acceptable wedding or other presents.

The Exhibition will be open for 10 days only, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and all art lovers are advised to pay a visit to Messrs. Komor and Komor's Art Rooms in Chater Road.

ANOTHER ROMANCE ON THE ROCKS

Dorothy Gish Files Divorce Suit

CHARGE OF INTOLERABLE CRUELTY

The marriage idyll of Dorothy Gish and James Rennie, the Canadian-born Broadway actor, is on the rocks. A divorce suit has been filed by Miss Gish in Bridgeport, Connecticut, although it will not be heard until the autumn. Miss Gish charges her husband with intolerable cruelty. Her lawyer said:

"Miss Gish does not expect to marry anyone else. She is a sick girl, and intends to go away for a long holiday."

Broadway has always spoken of this marriage as "made in heaven." It began with an elopement on December 26, 1920, but Mr. Rennie admits that the separation occurred a year ago.

"I'M SUPERSTITIOUS"

After 10 years' married life someone asked Miss Gish what it was like to be happily married. The film star replied: "Hush, don't mention that. I'm superstitious."

Miss Gish is seeking no alimony.

While Miss Gish is seeking a divorce two other Hollywood stars have received their final decrees. Esther Ralston is freed from George Webb, the publicity expert, and Thelma Todd is divorced from Pasquale de Cicco after three years of married life.

Wednesday Win

The Wednesday did not put to good use any further free kicks and half-time arrived with the Albion pressing and the score still at 1-1.

THRILL FOLLOWS THRILL

Thrilling football followed the interval. First Glidden grazed the far upright with a cunning drop shot that was just touched by Brown, then Pearson was forced to punch clear a high drop shot; and then the crowd was left breathless when Pearson left his goal and Shaw just cleared what appeared to be a certain goal from a punt by Palethorpe. The score at the end of 60 minutes was still 1-all.

WEDNESDAY TAKE LEAD

A fine opening created by Burrows, the Wednesday left-half, enabled Rimmer, the left winger, to flash across a glorious centre to Hooper, who drove in a terrific shot for a fine goal in the 69th minute, much against the run of the play.

Then a defensive kick by the Albion's back, Trentham, found the unmarked Carter, who, accurately passed to Sandford for him to trap the ball and send in a pile driver off his left foot, which beat Brown all ends up to level the scores after 73 minutes.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPES

With 20 minutes left both goals underwent miraculous escapes, Palethorpe, the Wednesday leader, and W. G. Richardson, the Throstles' leader, both shooting inches wide.

Five minutes from the finish the Wednesday scored twice in quick succession through Rimmer, their left-winger.

The first was a header, converting a beautiful centre from Hooper, his right-winger. Then he shot into the net after Pearson, the Albion goalkeeper, had pushed down a hard drive from Starling, the inside-left.

The Wednesday's finish brought a perfect climax to a wonderful game. No Cup Final in recent years could equal this match in the matter of thrills.

LONDON INVADED

London, Earlier.

London has been invaded since dawn by gaily-bedecked soccer enthusiasts who travelled all night from all parts of the country to see the Wembley Cup Final. They killed the time before the kick-off by sightseeing.

All the prominent representatives of the British Empire who are over for the Jubilee celebrations have been invited to attend.

H.M. the King's plans have not yet been announced. They depend on the weather, which is promising.

The result is very open. Sheffield Wednesday being 5 to 4 favourites, but West Bromwich Albion are the more experienced team and include nine members of the 1931 winners' team.

The teams are:

West Bromwich:— Pearson; Shaw, Trentham, Murphy, W. Richardson, Edwards; Glidden, Carter, W. G. Richardson, Sandford and Boyes.

Sheffield Wednesday:—Brown; Wilcoe, Carlin; Sharp, Millership, Burrows; Hooper, Surtees, Palethorpe, Starling and Rimmer.

NEW SCHOOLS FOR KWANGTUNG

Vocational Education Adopted

Canton, Yesterday.

The Kwangtung Provincial Department of Education has recently been paying much attention to the promotion of vocational education.

At present, there are three agricultural vocational schools, one engineering vocational school and one commercial vocational school, under the direction and management of the Department. In addition to those under the new educational programme, the Department has decided to establish three more agricultural vocational schools, three engineering vocational schools, one commercial vocational school and one home economic vocational school, within two years.—Central Press.

HUGE U.S. NAVAL BILL APPROVED

Largest Peace-Time Programme Known

PASSED BY HOUSE DESPITE OPPOSITION

Washington, Yesterday.

Having overwhelmingly defeated all efforts to delay the construction of new ships till the Spring of 1936, the House of Representatives yesterday passed the Naval Appropriations Bill, which recommends the largest peace-time programme in the United States' history, by which the expenditure will be $457,000,000, rising to $555,000,000 after 1941. The bill now goes to the Senate.—Reuter.

CANTONESE STYLES FOR BOTH SEXES

Sumptuary Laws For Coming Summer

SEVERE SIMPLICITY WILL BE ENFORCED

[From Our Own Correspondent]

Canton, Yesterday.

Latest West End fashions for ladies or "Au Chic Parisien" will have no effect on women in Canton this summer, nor will Eugene waves or marcelling be popular here in the coming months.

The reason is that the Kwangtung Political Research Institute has set the style and fashion for both ladies' and gentlemen's wear. As a first step, the Institute recommends the use of native materials for the dresses of both sexes.

Long gowns, according to the dictate of the Institute, must not be shorter than knee-length nor come below the ankle. Short coats or blouses should at least come down to the hips.

If women wear long outer gowns with side slits, they must wear undergarments which conceal their legs. They must not appear in public in pyjamas. They should have their hair cut short, but not dressed in any fancy styles. Schoolgirls must wear plain cloths of native materials.

General Chen Chi-tang is the sponsor of this movement. It is said that the rules given above will be made mandatory by the Government and school authorities.

I.R.A. LEADER SENTENCED TO IMPRISONMENT

Thomas Barry Outlines Party Aims

REFUSES TO RECOGNISE COURT

Dublin, Yesterday.

A military tribunal yesterday sentenced to a month's imprisonment Thomas Barry, leader of the Irish Republican Army in Cork, for membership of an unlawful association.

A police officer testified that Barry, when questioned, said the object of the I. R. A. was to force the British to evacuate the country, to destroy the two Dominion parliaments and break the connection with England.

Barry asserted that there were 29,000 I. R. A. men in Ireland. He refused to recognise the court. — Reuter.

K.C.C. WHIST DRIVE

Mrs. Craig & Mr. Bidder Win Prizes

A combined whist-drive and tombola was held at the Kowloon Cricket Club last night, there being 11 whist tables in play.

Mrs. Craig carried off the ladies' first prize, and Mrs. Adams the second, while the "booby" prize went to Mrs. Whitmore.

The men's first prize was won by Mr. Bidder while Mr. Adams took second place. The "booby" went to Mr. Goodwin.
